WASHINGTON BANK WILL MERGE WITH TITLE GUARANTY

Reports to This Effect in Financial Circles Cause Sharp Advance in Shares of Trust Company, and Demand for Bank's Stock, Hitherto Not Listed.

INCREASE IS $5 DURING THE DAY

Van Riper, President of Fiduciary Concern, and City Treasurer Quick, Head of National Bank, Withhold Announcement.

The Title Guaranty Trust Co. and the Washington National Bank are to be merged, according to unofficial announcements which caused a big advance in Title Guaranty shares on the St. Louis Stock Exchange Saturday.

The Washington National stock is not listed on the Exchange, but there has been a brisk demand for the shares in the last few days.

Bidding was so brisk for Title Guaranty stock Saturday that it advanced $5 a share. At the close of the market bidders were offering $90.50 a share, the net gain in the last two weeks having been $10.50 a share.

The Title Guaranty Trust has a capital stock of $2,500,000 and surplus and undivided profits of $190,000. J. C. Van Riper is its president.

The Washington National Bank, of which City Treasurer Leon W. Quick is president, has a capital stock of $500,000, surplus $55,000, undivided profits $8000 and deposits $1,000,000.

Neither Van Riper or Quick would discuss the projected merger.

"I must deny the truth of the rumor, but you may come to me for a more extended statement later in the afternoon," said Van Riper.

"See Van Riper. I can't talk," said Quick.

GUNBOAT WHEELING LOST TO WIRELESS, BUT HELD SAFE

Navy Officials Express Confidence Fighting Craft Will Report at Guantanamo.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—No news has yet been received by the Navy Department in regard to the gunboat Wheeling, en route from New York to Guantanamo, Cuba, which, it is rumored, has met with an accident at sea.

All southern wireless stations are reaching out in an effort to get into communication with the gunboat. Nevertheless navy officials discredit the rumor and are confident the vessel will report at Guantanamo tonight or tomorrow.

FIVE RICH LUMBERMEN BEGIN PRISON TERMS FOR PEONAGE

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 28.—Five wealthy Southern lumbermen will enter the Federal prison here today to serve sentences for peonage. They are W. S. Harlan, Robert Gallagher, Dr. W. E. Grace, C. C. Hilton and E. S. Huggins, all of Lockhart, Ala.

Harlan and Gallagher will each serve 18 months and pay fines of $5000. The three others will serve 12 months and pay $1000 each.

Has anybody here seen Winter? Nobody has, and nobody will, for a day or two anyway.

There is no promise of a glimpse of it on the Sunday weather program. The cold wave and snowstorm that have been expected here have gone elsewhere.

Clear skies and rising temperature are the promise for Sunday, which means that overcoats may be left at home without much risk of discomfort.

Even Saturday night there will not be enough cold weather to complain about, with the minimum temperature somewhere around 34 degrees.

Official forecast: Fair tonight and Sunday; warmer Sunday, with the lowest temperature tonight about 34 degrees above zero.

BURGLAR STUNS 2 HELPLESS WOMEN WITH IRON JIMMY

Miss Matilda Geis and Sister, Mrs. Lena Klein, Seriously Wounded by Young Thief.

TELEPHONE WIRES CUT

Niece of Victims of Effeminate Appearing Youth Was Not Molested During Raid.

Miss Matilda Geis and Mrs. Lena Klein, sisters, living at 1920 Sidney street, were beaten over the head by a burglar armed with a jimmy early Saturday morning. Each sustained severe scalp wounds and after the assault the burglar escaped.

Miss Geis is an invalid and when the burglar stood over her bed flashing a dark lantern in her face, she awoke with a scream.

"Shut up!" said the burglar, "keep quiet and get me your money and I won't hurt you."

"Get away from the bed," said Miss Geis, "and I will get up."

The burglar stepped back and Miss Geis slipped out of bed and ran to an open window from which she thrust her head and yelled for help. Grabbing her by the night dress the burglar pulled her back into the room and struck her over the head with an iron jimmy. The blow stunned Miss Geis for a moment and awakened her sister, Mrs. Lena Klein, who was sleeping in the next room with her niece, Miss Amelia Hack. Mrs. Klein started into the room where the burglar stood over the prostrate form of Miss Geis and as she entered the burglar sized her and said: "Get me your money and keep quiet."

"I have no money in the house," said Mrs. Klein. Then she began to scream for help and the burglar struck her once over the head with his jimmy. She kept on screaming and was struck the second time with such force that she fell to the floor unconscious.

The niece, Miss Hack, began to scream for help. In one room Miss Geis was returning to consciousness and beside her the other aunt, Mrs. Klein, was lying.

"You don't want to get what they got, do you?" asked the burglar as he pointed to the two women. "If you make a fuss I'll crack you over the head, too."

Miss Hack kept quiet and the burglar left the house, going out through a rear door.

Then Miss Hack ran to the telephone to call the police and found the wire cut. The screams of the women had awakened some of the neighbors and Fred K. Miller of 1919 Sidney street came to the door. He did not go into the house, but went in search of a policeman. It was 30 minutes before a policeman could be found, and this finally was accomplished by one of the neighbors calling up the station.

Henry Loesch of 1916 Sidney street was awakened by the screams of Miss Geis and saw the burglar fleeing through the alley.

Mrs. Klein is 59 yeares old and her sister, Miss Geis, is 55. The niece, Miss Hack, is 20.

The women describe the burglar as being an effeminate looking young man about 22 years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall, slightly built and wearing a dark suit with light-colored fedora hat and a tan overcoat.

Mrs. Klein was the worse injured of the two and was weak Saturday morning from loss of blood. Her sister, Miss Geis, did not suffer so much from the blow she received on the head, but, as she has been an invalid for years, the incident is expected to have a bad effect on her.

ADOLPHUS PEPER WROTE OF PLOT TO KILL BROTHER

Inquiry Into Sanity of Son of Former Tobacco Magnate Begun in Probate Court.

LETTER SHOWN TO JURY

Louisville Man Expresses Belief Relative Is Mentally Unsound and Cites Expenditures.

In an inquiry into the mental condition of Adolphus S. Peper, 47 years old, youngest son of the late Christian Peper, founder of the Peper Tobacco Co., Charles G. Peper of Louisville, Ky., brother of Adolphus, testified that he had received three letters from his brother in one of which Adolphus had written:

"I have hired five men to kill you."

This letter was shown to the jury. Charles G. Peper testified further:

"My brother called me over the phone and threatened to kill me. He also called at my office and said he would kill me within six months and he threatened my brother-in-law, Col. Nicholas M. Bell."

Charles Peper testified that in his opinion his brother was mentally unbalanced and as an evidence of it related that Adolphus used to draw $100 from the bank and the next day he would not have enough money for car fare.

Imagined He Was Musician.

Col. Nicholas M. Bell testified that his brother-in-law, Adolphus, had many peculiarities. One was that he was a talented musician.

"He would call me up over the telephone to hear him play the jewsharp and beat a drum," said Col. Bell. "In the coldest day in winter he would dress in low summer shoes, red stockings and thin clothing and then complain that he was suffering with the heat. He owned 19 houses in Papin street jointly with my wife but we could not get him to pay his share of the repairs nor could we get him to consider any serious business affair. He had a hobby for attending moving picture shows and imagined he was a singer in them. He told me he had signed a contract to sing over a circuit of picture houses and said his brother Charles was coming from Louisville to manage him."

Inherited $300,000 From Father.

Adolphus inherited about $300,000 of his father's $4,000,000 estate.

Adolphus recently attacked his brother-in-law, Col. Nicholas M. Bell, in Bell's office, because he believed Bell had induced Charles to begin sanity proceedings, and the same day of the assault Bell filed suit against Adolphus in the Circuit Court for $100,000 damages.

At court Saturday Adolphus was under guard at the request of his brother. The Sheriff searched his pockets but found no weapon. Charles told the Sheriff that he feared his brother.

Charles was the first witness. He testified that his brother Adolphus had been physically and mentally weak since childhood. He told how Adolphus had been placed by his father in the Western Military Academy in Upper Alton. He said the boy would not stay there, but returned and went to work in his father's tobacco factory at $75 a month. He soon gave that up and lived on an allowance paid by his father until the elder Peper died in 1903, Charles testified.

$125,421,538 FOR U. S. NAVY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Carrying a total of $125,421,538, the naval appropriation bill was reported to the House today by Chairman Foss of the Naval Affairs Committee.

The bill carries $5,929,316 less than the current appropriation and $2,044,621 less than the estimates submitted by the Navy Department.

Startling

Because no other metropolitan newspaper in the United States can show such magnificent comparative records as the POST-DISPATCH is making week after week as shown on three days out of five practically every week in the year.

The extraordinary record for the present week shows that, on three days out of five, without special effort of any kind, the POST-DISPATCH carried of St. Louis merchants' display advertising, while its next three best competitors, namely, the Globe-Democrat, Republic and Times, all added together, carried but Such overwhelming preference for one newspaper over all its competitors in its field is unknown outside of St. Louis.

CHARLES DIEHR IS ARRESTED ON FARO GAMBLING CHARGE

Is Son of Partner in Alleged Attempt to Swindle St. Louisans in Fake Game.

Information charging Charles Diehr, alias Charles A. Denton, and his father, Augustus Diehr, with setting up a faro game was filed Saturday by Circuit Attorney Jones and his assistant, James C. Shaner. The charge in the information is a felony punishable by a penitentiary sentence.

Charles Diehr was arrested Saturday afternoon by Detectives Joyce and Hoagland at the home of his father, 1153A North Euclid avenue. The father was not at home and detectives continued the search for him.

The original charge upon which the Diehrs were arrested Friday and released on $200 bond was one of vagrancy. Upon that charge they appeared in the City Police Court Saturday morning, but Feilhauer refused to prosecute and the cases were continued. Afterward the Circuit Attorney looked up the law and decided to proceed against them under a state charge.

Deny Faro Connection.

Charles Diehr said to a reporter for the Post-Dispatch Saturday that neither he nor his father were connected in any way with the faro swindle.

"My object in going to the Jefferson Hotel was to talk over a system we had to beat the races," said Diehr.

Diehr lives with his father and mother in richly furnished apartments at 1135 North Euclid avenue. It was there that the reporter saw both the father and the son Saturday. The father refused to talk. The son talked freely while his diamonds sparkled in the electric light.

He had a large diamond in his necktie, another shone from a ring on his finger and a whole bunch of them blazed from a watch charm.

Doesn't Have to Work.

"It's true that I'm on easy street," he said. "I don't have to work. I have plenty of money, but I didn't make it in any swindling games, and I didn't get any of it from Feilhauer or any other St. Louis man by means of a faro game. I have been in the oil business, was vice-president of the Pittsburg & Illinois Oil Co. I sold out my interest six months ago, and that is where the money came from upon which I am living now.

"My father and Feilhauer are old friends. My father managed a saloon for him once. It is true that Feilhauer became interested in the system which I and others had for beating the races, and he might have invested, but he did not, and he did not lose a dollar. He will tell you so if you ask him.

POLICE OF NATION ASKED TO FIND MISSING HEIRESS

New York Department Sends Out General Alarm and Reward Is Offered in Hunt for Dorothy Arnold.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The police department has sent a general alarm throughout the city, thus bringing uniformed men into the hunt which has heretofore been confined to plain clothes men, in an effort to solve the mystery of the disappearance of Miss Dorothy Arnold, the young society woman and heiress, who vanished Dec. 12 from her home at 108 West Seventy-ninth street.

Inspector Russell has received orders to rush the mailing of posters, offering a reward of $1000 for the finding of the girl. An accurate likeness and description of Miss Arnold will be sent to every chief of police, town marshal and private detective agency in the United States and Canada.

Miss Arnold's mother is said to be breaking down under the strain.

John Arnold, the girl's brother, has just returned from a secret mission abroad, but denies that he has been searching for her in Europe. It is declared his trip was in the interest of his father's business. "This is the first I have heard of the disappearance," said the brother.

Deputy Police Commissioner Flynn denies having said he was satisfied that Miss Arnold's parents knew her present whereabouts. Additional letters demanding ransom for the young woman's return have been received, but both the police and the lawyers directing the search scout the theory that she is being held for ransom. John S. Keith, of Mr. Arnold's legal advisers, asserts his belief that the letters were written by blackmailers.

It is the belief of persons interested in the girl, her case may prove to be one of the most remarkable instances of auto-suggestion on record.

Should it develop later that Miss Arnold has taken her own life, the correlation between the incidents that are thought to have inspired her disappearance and those which actually brought it about will have been carried out to the fullest extreme.

The family of Miss Arnold say for publication that they fear she met her death through foul play, but they are known to carry a strong impression that she may have taken her own life. Her father, Francis R. Arnold, said yesterday that he was positive his daughter was dead.

An extraordinary chain of coincidents hangs around the fact that a young Mr. Griscom, said to be a relative of Lloyd C. Griscom, former ambassador to Italy and the president of the New York County Republican Committee, was one of Miss Arnold's most ardent admirers.

Families Are Friendly.

In February, 1905, the year Miss Arnold was graduated from Bryn Mawr, there was a young Andrew Griscom, son of William M. Griscom of Bryn Mawr, Pa. William M. Griscom is a brother of Clementa Griscom and of Lloyd C. Griscom.

Andrew Griscom was well known at Bryn Mawr, from which Miss Arnold was about to be graduated. The Griscom and the Arnold families have been friendly for years in New York, and in Philadelphia Miss Arnold visited homes where Andrew Griscom was a guest.

On Feb. 8, 1905, Andrew Griscom, 22, was reported missing. The police of Philadelphia were asked to make a silent search. Eleven days later the police of New York and other cities were asked to send out a general alarm. Finally it was learned that Young Griscom had fallen madly in love with a governess and Mrs. Griscom had put her foot down. The governess, a Miss Elsie Hanson, took a steamer for England. Young Griscom promptly dropped out of sight.

Steamships Watched.

Every steamship was watched, but he eluded private detectives and sailed for Europe. Later developments made it appear that he had shipped as a helper on a cattle steamer, determined to reach England, where Miss Hanson had arrived a fortnight ahead of him.

What happened in England is not known, but a month later, when the steamship Minnetonka arrived at this port from London, the relatives of young Griscom where at the pier to welcome him. The captain of the steamer informed the family that Andrew Griscom had jumped overboard in a fit of despondency the day after the ship had sailed from England.

The tragic fate of young Griscom, it is said, made a strong impression on the mind of Miss Arnold at Bryn Mawr. The home of the Griscoms, near the college, was closed and the family went into retirement.

The curious similarity of Miss Arnold's disappearance and the inability of her parents to find her, to the case of Griscom, is heightened by the admitted fact that she had a love affair with a young man who is now said to be abroad. This young man is said to be at Florence, Italy, at the request of his relatives, who did not approve his friendship for Miss Arnold.

With this young man, it is said, she kept up a clandestine correspondence, the existence of which was revealed when her family went through her private letters in an endeavor to learn some reason for her departure.

Furthermore, the similarity of the two disappearances is strengthened by the fact that the Arnold parents almost at once formed the conclusion that Dorothy had gone abroad, though she was practically destitute of funds.

EXTRA SESSION FOR RECIPROCITY BILLS CONSIDERED CERTAIN

Taft, Determined to Push Through Canadian Program, Will Not Hesitate to Convene New Congress, if Stand-Patters Carry Out Threats to Defeat His Plans.

TARIFF REVISION LIKELY TO BE INCLUDED IN CALL

Republicans Equally Divided on Projected Treaty, but Democrats Favor It as Step in Right Direction—Former Mayors of Chicago and College Heads Give Views.

Shall tariff reform be postponed until 1912?
Shall reduction of the cost of living be postponed until 1912?

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—A great white dazzling light has broken over Washington.

National legislators who have been ignoring the question, or have ridiculed it, are today prophesying an extra session, as though it were a discovery of their own.

There is no spot in the country that receives and realizes the impress of the will of the people later than official Washington.

The prophecy made by Senators and Representatives today that there will be an extra session of Congress is based on a careful reading of the President's Canadian reciprocity message which most of the statesmen had tucked away for future reference.

When they read in the newspapers that President Taft said in his message that far-sighted policy requires that if we can enlarge our supply of the necessities of life we should take steps to do so NOW, t[illegible] was an immediate rush to read the unread message.

Delay in Reciprocity Bill Likely

A CANVASS of the House and Senate showed that it was unlikely that the reciprocity bills could pass at this session. A visit to the White House by legislators revealed the fact that the President meant what he said. The President hopes that the present Congress would put through the Canadian reciprocity program, but if it will not do so, the President is confident that the next Congress, of entirely different character, will. The President made no mention of an extra session, but this attitude was pointed out to several stand-pat visitors at the White House.

The administration lays emphasis on the fact that the conference over reciprocity was brought about as much by the United States as by Canada. The agreement has been received with enthusiasm by the Canadian Parliament. It will be no less than international discourtesy on the part of the United States of this Government fails to do all that it can to make the agreement complete, and the sooner it is done the less the United States will have to charge itself with discourtesy.

This statement, while in no way mentioning an extra session, was so plain that Washington this morning is predicting the assembling of the new Congress in March.

Nonpartisan Solution Expected to Come Through Extra Session

Cabinet members seen by the Post-Dispatch correspondent today stood shoulder to shoulder with the President, even on his statement that the lowering of the cost of living should be prepared for now.

The leaders of both parties in the House of Representatives, where this measure, as a revenue-raising measure, must originate, prophesied today that the result will be a nonpartisan solution of the question by the Sixty-second Congress, called into extra session within ten days after March 4.

Battle Must Come in House.

The Senate is in a waiting attitude, as the battle must come now from the House. To be sure, the Senate might frame a concurrent bill, but that is not likely to happen.

Leaders of both the House and Senate which control the machinery do not expect the agreement to pass at this session. They are confident that the agreement will be passed by the next Congress in extraordinary session.

There is not the slightest doubt that if the President is forced by circumstance to call an extraordinary session of the Sixty-second Congress in March, he will include in the call a suggestion for the downward revision of the tariff on the necessaries of life, not only in the relations with Canada, but in the relations with all countries.

The members of President Taft's Cabinet were seen individually by the Post-Dispatch correspondent and each expressed the same view, the view of President Taft and Secretary Knox, as set forth in the President's message:

"A far-sighted policy requires that if we can enlarge our supply of natural resources, especially of food products, and the necessities of life, without substantial injury to any of our producing and manufacturing classes, we should take steps to do so now."

Taft Gets Assurances.

Charles D. Nortop, secretary to the President, said that assurances had been made at the White House that the Congress now nearing an end would pass the necessary legislation to ratify the treaty, thereby marking an epoch in American trade history.

On the other hand, the men of the House and Senate who have control of the situation and who can bring the bills out of the committee or leave them there—indicated plainly in interviews that the Canadian reciprocity treaty will not pass at this session.

Congress cannot reduce the tariff on the articles named in the agreement by treaty. Senate bills for the reduction of the tariff on the articles named in the agreement will have to be introduced and voted upon by the House and Senate and signed by the President in the same manner as any other new legislation.

Almost daily Senator Hale has delivered an urgent plea for haste. He has announced that the present condition of business is worse than he has ever before witnessed, in 30 years of service. Yesterday afternoon, at the suggestion of Senator Hale, an agreement was made to have no session of the Senate until Monday. The comparison of Hale's early morning program with his pathetic admonitions heretofore caused considerable comment among senators who realized that the underlying program was to do nothing but pass the appropriation bills and adjourn March 4.

The Senate leaders have [illegible] tentative program in regard to the Canadian reciprocity treaty. It involves absolute non-action until the House has taken up and disposed of the entire matter. For that reason, no meeting of the Finance Committee has been called to begin consideration of the treaty. It is assumed that none will be called for that purpose, until the joint resolution making the convention comes over from the House.

Senators Grow Apathetic.

All the controlling powers in the Senate seem agreed that nothing can be accomplished between this time and

LEHMANN, CALLED LIAR, TURNS GUNS ON HIS ACCUSER

Declares That H. C. Koenig, Who Challenged His School Board Statements at Lemp's Hall Was One of the Members of the Body Who Was Sent to Jail.

MERCHANTS EXCHANGE HEARS EXPLANATION

Voters Are Told That One Reason Why Initiative Was Left Out of Charter Was Because There Is Doubt if Provision Is Constitutional

Members of the Merchants' Exchange heard Fred W. Lehmann tell something in his speech Saturday noon of H. C. Koenig, who called Lehmann a liar at the Lemp Hall meeting Friday night.

When Lehmann had told his audience that Koenig was one of the men who was sent to jail in connection with the St. Louis school board prosecution several years ago, there was a chorus of "That will be about all for Koenig."

"My veracity was questioned last night," said Lehmann as he arose to address the Merchants' Exchange members, 500 of whom had gathered to hear him talk in favor of the new charter, "and I want to be a little more explicit today than I was last night in reference to this man Koenig. The case concerning the Cole County School Board is entitled the State of Missouri ex rel Kelleher against the school directors of St. Louis. It is reported in the 134 Missouri and the sentence against the members was pronounced in May 1896 and was a fine of $25 and 10 days in jail. Koenig was one of the men who went to jail."

The crest of enthusiasm aroused by Fred W. Lehmann's second pro-charter speech in St. Louis, delivered Friday evening at Lemp's Hall, rose when he told why the Board of Freeholders, of which he was chairman, decided to leave the initiative and referendum out of the code. The omission of this feature has been the object of attack by labor unions.

Objection to Initiative.

"The initiative was subject to the same objection as the referendum," said Lehmann, "in that it was of doubtful legality. The fault there, if there be a fault, lay not in the city charter, but in the State Constitution, and you must amend that before you can have a clearly legal initiative and referendum. But my objection to the initiative went deeper than that. I considered it a mistake.

"This measure was pushed through in a great hurry and with a great burrah, and it was not, to my thinking, a wise measure. You had a taste of it last fall when you voted on an amendment to prohibit the sale of liquor in this State. The amendment was defeated by more than 200,000 votes, but, my friends, the issue can be raised by 5 per cent of the citizens of Missouri, if they choose, again and again and again."

It was a South Side audience and Lehmann's reference to the prohibition issue won applause. He was cheered repeatedly for his analysis of the charter, and at the end the applause amounted to an ovation.

Interruptions Are Personal.

Lehmann was thrice interrupted during his speech, but all the attacks were personal. None was directed at the new charter.

The first interrupter was H. C. Koenig of 3336 Kosciusko street, a member of the Tenth Ward Improvement Association and formerly a member of the School Board. He became angry at Lehmann's description of the School Board's workings when he was a member of it.

"When I came to this town," said Lehmann, "gossip was rife, wherever public affairs were discussed, about corruption in the School Board. The members of the board were elected at that time, and the board was a partisan body. What was the result? A member from one ward would arrange with the man who sold coal to the schools, and a member from another ward with the man who sold books. Everybody knew the School Board had something to sell. And you all know that they were jailed in Cole County.

Koenig jumped to his feet to demand the reason why the members of the board were jailed.

"Because they refused to obey the mandate of the Supreme Court of this State," Lehmann replied.

Somebody yelled "Put him out," but Lehmann, unruffled and calm, turned with an upraised palm to quiet the audience.

"You can't prove it," Koenig said.

"I can prove it, and I can cite you to the volume of the Missouri reports containing the decision," Lehmann retorted, amid cheers.

Calls Speaker a Liar.

There were more angry cries to put the man out of the hall, but Koenig stood his ground long enough to say Lehmann was a liar.

"I won't listen any longer to a d— liar," he declared, and left the hall voluntarily, with three policemen who had hurried forward. Lehmann smiled as Koenig departed, and the audience, which had been in high dudgeon, suddenly broke into cheers.

Koenig said Saturday that members of the board were constructively jailed because they refused to accept a list of election judges and clerks presented by Hugh Brady, chairman of the Democratic City Committee.

"What Lehmann said was actually true, because the members of the board were put in jail for refusing to obey the Supreme Court," Koenig said, "but it gave the wrong impression, and that was why I called him a liar. I still think he's a liar, and if he makes another speech in St. Louis I'll tell him so again."

In crossing rapiers with the next interrupter, Lehmann was even more successful in winning the applause of the house. After he had told of the corruption in the House of Delegates, and of how $47,500 was paid for a lighting contract, $250,000 for a traction bill, and $135,000 for a lighting franchise, to illustrate the need of doing away with the House of Delegates, a man rose and asked him:

"Isn't it true, Mr. Lehmann, that you defended Mr. Snyder of Kansas City, who put up $250,000 for the franchise? Why did you do that?"

Why He Defended Snyder.

"I did, because Snyder had been a citizen of this State for three years and was entitled to the protection of the statute of limitations. I have defended men for murder, but I never approved of murder."

The audience broke into laughter, but the questioner persisted.

"And didn't your law partner, Mr. Lehmann, class bribery as a conventional offense?"

"Let him answer for that," said Lehmann promptly. The question was a reference to former Judge Henry S. Priest

"What's that got to do with the charter?" somebody called, and the audience turned its attention afresh to Lehmann's discussion of that document.

The only other interruption came when Lehmann was praising the integrity and character of the Presidents of the United States in illustration of the fact that when the voters have a short ticket and are vitally concerned in the outcome, they never choose bad men. He said that all the way from Washington to Taft not one dishonest man, and not one of mediocre ability, had been President.

"What's the matter with Cleveland?" a man called without rising from his seat. Lehmann didn't answer.

Division of Power to Blame.

The bribery in the Municipal Assembly was due to division of power, Lehmann said. He pointed out that the abolishment of the House of Delegates would remedy this, and added: "I hope the city will be spared the humiliation and degradation of a repetition of that scandal." And he told of Nast's famous cartoon on the corrupt Tweed ring, picturing the bosses as standing in a circle, each pointing to the other and saying: "'Twas him,"—"a round robin of irresponsibility which began nowhere and ended nowhere," said Lehmann.

In discussing that article in the charter giving the city the right to regulate public utilities, Lehmann said the time might come when the city or some public corporation would warm the people's houses from a central heating plant.

"There is no limit to the possibilities of the future," he said. "When this was a small town every man could walk to work and the children could walk to school, but that time has passed. We cannot walk now. We must rely on the street cars. And that is why the city should have the right to regulate the service of its people get in those cars, so that the children won't have to ride to school packed together like pigs."

SPEAKERS CRITICISE LEHMANN IN ANTI-CHARTER MEETING

Judge Leo Rassieur Declares That Freeholder Was Wrong in His Opinions.

A fair-sized audience at Concordia Turner Hall, Thirteenth and Arsenal streets, Friday evening, heard objections to the new city charter.

The meeting seemed devoted principally to criticism of Frederick W. Lehmann and in speaking of Lehmann's work for the charter. Judge Leo Rassieur paid him a compliment as to legal ability, but contended in this instance that Lehmann was wrong.

William Brandt declared Lehmann is not scheduled for a speech in the West End. "I suppose," said Brandt, "that the friends of the charter think the West End will go unanimous for the charter anyway and that efforts in its behalf should be concentrated in North and South St. Louis."

E. J. Stone said the adoption of the charter would throw the city into litigation for the next 25 years. Sheridan Webster asserted that the recall clause was inserted after the charter had been practically completed. Dr. William Preston Hill presided.

Charter Election to Cost $57,840.

A bill appropriating $57,840 for the expenses of the election on the new charter has been passed by both branches of the Municipal Assembly. Acting Mayor Gundlach received the measure for his signature Saturday. An emergency clause makes the bill effective as soon as it is signed.

TURKISH SOLDIERS ATTACK AMERICAN CONSULS ON SHIP

By Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 28.—J. Ridgely Carter, who has been placed at the head of the American Embassy with the rank of minister plenipotentiary pending the appointment of a successor to Ambassador Straus, today lodged a protest with the porte against the assault and indignities to which American Consuls at Beirut and Alexandretta were recently subjected.

A sergeant instigated a mutiny among 50 Turkish soldiers on the steamer New Jersey. When that vessel reached Alexandretta she was flying the American flag and the American consular agent, John T. Peristiany, went on board to investigate. He was driven from the ship by soldiers. His hand was cut and his coat torn off.

Police arrested some of the soldiers, but the Captain of the New Jersey refused to surrender the ringleader. The vessel proceeded to Smyrinia, where there was a second row over the question of whether the soldiers or the sailors of the New Jersey were at fault. When the vessel docked, its second mate was arrested.

The American Consul-General, Ernest L. Harris, took a hand with the result that he was abused by the factions. However, he caused the arrest of the sergeant who had been ringleader in the trouble.

When news of the trouble reached Saloniki the shipping men declared a boycott against the owners of the New Jersey and refused to handle its freight.

The American Embassy at Constantinople took the matter up with the Turkish Government and in addition to protesting against the illtreatment of Peristiany and Harris, made representations regarding the boycott at Saloniki. Later the Embassy received assurances that adequate measures to stamp out the boycott had been taken.

There is no record of a New Jersey under American register in Turkish waters. The Olympia, of 480 tons, is owned by Haji Daoud Farkouh (Parquebots Poste-Archipelega) at Smyrna, and is of Turkish register.

invented the system for winning on the races. He had a room in the Jefferson and Fellhauer, Miller and I went up there to have him explain it and I and father were arrested."

Diehr was asked about the article in the Metropolitan magazine which he had printed and inserted between its leaves exploiting him as the owner of a gambling palace in New York.

"Well," he said, "that magazine article was suggested by a business man who said it would be a good thing to arouse enthusiasm in our system for beating the races. There was nothing wrong about that. It was simply a sort of prospectus."

Diehr was born in St. Charles where his father formerly had a saloon. He has lived the greater part of his life in St. Louis.

Martin Fellhauer told a reporter for the Post-Dispatch Saturday that he had not lost a cent.

"But I would have lost it if Dr. Miller had not exposed the swindle for me," he continued. "I came mighty near getting roped in. I was deeply interested in Diehr's scheme."

MRS. OSCAR HAMMERSTEIN SEEKING ABSOLUTE DIVORCE

Referee Appointed to Hear Testimony in Suit Against Famous Impresario.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Proceedings for absolute divorce from her husband, Oscar Hammerstein, were begun today by Mrs. Mavina Hammerstein in the Supreme Court at Nyack, N. Y. The suit came into court on application before Supreme Court Judge Arthur S. Tompkins for appointment of a referee to take testimony. The court appointed Daniel S. Sherman.

Neither of the principals in the suit was in court.

Mrs. Hammerstein, with her daughter, has been a resident of Nyack since last summer. Mr. Hammerstein sold his operatic interests in New York to the Metropolitan Opera last year. He retained numerous theatrical interests here, however, and has been planning to build and conduct a house for the production of grand opera in London, England. He is at present giving his personal attention to his enterprises here.

Fifer fired and escaped.

20 PINTS OF BEER MADE DISHWASHER IMAGINE WOUNDS

"I'm Shot," He Gasped, After Distancing Abe Slupsky's Daily Feat.

Trying to beat Abe Slupsky's record as a beer drinker caused all sorts of trouble for Robert Bates, a dishwasher employed by Pizzardi Bros., restaurant proprietors, of 7 North Twenty-third street. Between midnight and 3 o'clock Saturday morning Bates drank 20 pint bottles of beer. This is Col. Slupsky's allowance for a full working day and when Bates had accomplished the stunt in three hours he grew very bold.

Armed with a butcher knife he backed his dishwashing partner, Rudolph Borman, against the wall and proposed to dissect him. Changing his mind he took $7 in small change from the cash register and started to celebrate.

When Bates departed Borman reported to the police and the next heard of Bates was when he staggered into the American Storage Warehouse, 2807 Lawton avenue and sank on the floor gasping "I'm shot—I'm shot full of holes; call an ambulance."

The ambulance came and took Bates to the City Dispensary. On the way he told the policeman a thrilling story of how a negro had chased him and fired at him repeatedly, each bullet taking effect.

"That fellow was certainly a dead shot," Bates told the policeman, "for after each report I could feel the bullet strike me. I think there were five shots but there may have been six. We can tell when the doctor gets them out, for every one of them landed."

At the dispensary a careful examination of Bates failed to show that he had been wounded although he insisted that he was full of holes and about to die.

Bates was booked on a charge of larceny.

FLIGHT AND NEW NAME AS REFUGE FROM BLACK HAND

Tony Lorenzo, Prisoner of Fear, Will Attempt to Hide From Sicilians.

Tony Lorenzo will leave St. Louis, go far away and change his name and live in a part of the country where there are no Sicilians to escape the vengeance of the "Black Hand" for his action in telling the police of their demands and threats.

Following the dismissal, late Friday afternoon, of the cases against Tony Carlo and Sam Ross, who were charged with attempting to get money by blackmail from Lorenzo, in Judge McQuillen's court, he was taken back to the Mounted District Police Station, where he has been staying since Dec. 29.

He told Capt. O'Brien he was planning to leave town and find a new home under a new name, so far away that the Sicilians would never find him. His place of business on "Dago Hill" has been closed since the building was dynamited Dec. 20.

MRS. McPHERSON IS RELIEVED

In Letter Written From Chadbourn, N. C., She Makes a Full Statement Regarding Her Case.

In a letter from this place, Mrs. M. D. McPherson says:

"I suffered five years with awful pains. They grew worse until I would often faint. I could not walk at all, for two or three days at a time, and had an awful hurting in my side, and headache, and backache. I could not do anything.

"I gave up, and thought I would die, but my husband said, 'Let's try Cardui.' So I began and the first bottle helped me, and I could do my cooking, and by the time the third bottle was used, I could do all my work.

"The Cardui home treatment will do more than you recommend it to do. All the people around said I would die, but thanks to Cardui, I was relieved."—Chadbourn, N. C.

Cardui is composed of gentle-acting herb ingredients. Its action is mild and natural, and it has no bad after-effects, as have many of the powerful drugs sometimes recommended.

No other medicine or tonic has exactly the same results as Cardui.

No other has the record of 50 years of successful treatment of cases of womanly ailments and disease.

Suppose you try it.

POLICE HEAR OF 2 FAMILIES IN DIRE WANT

Mrs. Garnett's Baby Is Near Death and She Cannot Go to Work.

Police of the Central District are endeavoring to obtain aid for the family of Mrs. Josie Garnett of 177 South Tenth street. Garnett is ill and unable to work and their 3-year-old baby, Willie, is thought to be dying at the Children's Hospital.

Two other children are with their parents, and Mrs. Garnett says they have had nothing to eat for two days. She says that she cannot go out to seek employment, as physicians at the Children's Hospital have told her to remain at home in readiness for a message which might come at any time to call her to the bedside of her dying child.

Mrs. Asbury D. Smith and her 24-days-old baby born a day after her husband was killed, and her four other children are reported in want, and her neighbors have asked the police to help her.

Mrs. Smith's husband was killed Dec. 23, last. His neck was broken when he fell six feet from his wagon to the street, while driving along Manchester avenue, Dec. 24, 1910 a boy was born to Mrs. Smith, while her husband's body was lying in the morgue. Mrs. Smith and her children live in a frame shack at 6678 West Park avenue.

The little baby is wrapped in a shawl and the rest of the children have colds from the want of warm clothing. Mrs. Smith's eldest child is 9 years old.

SON FINDS HIS MOTHER DEAD

Neighbors Had Not Seen Invalid Woman for More Than Year.

Mrs. Anna Rockett, 75 years old, was found dead in bed at 6 a. m. Saturday at her home, 1436 North Fourteenth street, by her son, Patrick Rockett. She had been an invalid for a year. The body was taken to the morgue.

Mrs. Rockett and her son, a granitoid worker, had occupied one room in the basement of the Fourteenth street address for almost 10 years. Few of her neighbors had seen the woman for more than a year.

HOUSE LIKELY TO WITHHOLD USE OF COURTHOUSE SITE

Hearing Is Held on Proposition to Permit Erection of Office Building.

Defeat of the bill authorizing the leasing of the court house for 99 years as the site of an office building, probably will be recommended by the Committee on Public Improvements of the House of Delegates Tuesday night.

A public hearing was accorded advocates and opponents of the measure Friday. Only one speaker appeared on each side. Attorney John F. Green of the firm of Judson & Green contended that acceptance of the proposition would be profitable to the city, as the return would be 5 per cent on $1,000,000.

Roger Baldwin, secretary of the Civic League, declared that if the committee was seriously considering a favorable report on the measure he would bring members of his organization to oppose it. The proposal was so preposterous, he said, that unless approval of it were contemplated he would not waste time in discussion.

The building which Guy C. Mariner, promoter of the enterprise, and his associates would be permitted to erect surrounding the dome of the court house, might be 20 stories high. Free rent for court rooms and offices of judges and other officials was offered as a partial consideration of the lease.

CHIEF ORDERS PATROLMEN TO ENLIST AS STRAPHANGERS

Failure to Surrender Seats When Women Are Standing Will Bring Board Charges.

A man cannot be a seat hog and a policeman at the same time. Such is the information imparted in a telephone order issued by Chief of Police Young to the captains of the various districts.

The captains were instructed to tell patrolmen that they must give street car seats to women. If they fail in this gallantry they will be sent before the Board of Police Commissioners for unbecoming conduct. The police manual is silent on this point.

Chief Young's order was issued as the result of anonymous complaints relative to the conduct of patrolmen on street cars.

"It is not becoming of any man to enjoy a seat at the expense of a woman," said the Chief, "and certainly it is not becoming of a uniformed officer. Policemen are supposed to be gentlemanly and polite at all times. They must stand up in the street cars and let the women sit down."

TEACHERS TESTIFY OF CATLIN'S FLAG GIFTS FOR PUPILS

Deny at Election Hearing That Sanction Was Given for the Distributions.

RULES OF BOARD FORBID

Evidence Also Obtained About Dinner Given at Winning Candidate's Home.

Four women school teachers and the principals of several St. Louis public schools testified Saturday in the Gill-Catlin contest that several thousand American flags bearing Catlin's name on a silk streamer were distributed to school children a day or two before the election, as a sort of patriotic finale to his congressional campaign.

Permission for the distribution was refused at some of the schools, and the canvassers then took their stand outside of the school gates and gave the flags to the pupils as they left the buildings, according to the testimony. Principal Joseph H. Soy of the Patrick Henry School, testified that none of the flags was distributed in his school to his knowledge, and that if he had found any distributors at work, he would have called janitors and assisted the men out of the building. He said he is not in favor of using the public schools for advertising purposes.

"An enterprising fellow might slip in and distribute such things without my knowledge, but I would not consent to anything about the school that squints in favor of any political candidate," he testified.

Teachers Are Witnesses.

The testimony of the teachers and principals was taken before Commissioner John J. O'Brien in the Fullerton Building Saturday. Attorney Vincent McShane represented Patrick Gill in the proceedings, and Attorney Eugene S. Wilson appeared for Catlin.

Miss Edna E. White, 1350 Belt avenue, a teacher in the Burd Avenue school, testified that American flags bearing Catlin's name on a streamer attacked were distributed outside the gates of her school the day before the November election. She said she did not give her consent to distribution, and knew of no permission being asked.

Miss Anna J. Kelly, 4720 Page boulevard, principal of the O'Fallon School, refused permission to three canvassers to distribute Catlin flags, citing the rule of the Board of Education, she testified. The flags were distributed at the close of the school day outside of the school yard, she said.

The pupils of the Jackson School almost overwhelmed the distributors of the Catlin flags in their eagerness, and forced the men to take refuge in the school yard, according to the testimony of Walter H. Wilcox, principal of that school. Wilcox testified that he had refused permission for the distribution on the school grounds.

The testimony showed that a rule of the Board of Education prohibits the distribution of advertising matter of any kind in, on or within 300 feet of public schools without a permit from Superintendent Blewett.

Catlin Dinner Described.

From the depositions of witnesses taken before Commissioner George H. Moore it was shown that Miss Irene Catlin, sister of Theron, had issued a personal invitation to eight or ten mechanics and laboring men to a dinner given for them at the Catlin residence in Vandeventer place.

Florence D. McAuliffe of 4535 Page boulevard, a contractor, said that he was at work on the Catlin residence with these other men at the time. He said the dinner was "a swell affair with two ladies and two butlers waiting on the table."

The dinner was held the day after election and McAuliffe said Theron Catlin was asleep upstairs while they were eating dinner, but after they had a few glasses of beer they wanted somebody to talk to them and sent for him. He came down and made a short address. McAuliffe said that this was the only time he had ever had any dealings with any member of the Catlin family in so far as the election was concerned.

SALE OF 3 HOUCK RAILROADS TO FRISCO SYSTEM REPORTED

Lines in Southeastern Missouri Believed to Have Been Transferred.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Jan. 28.—Louis Houck, a railroad builder, whose small roads have made most of the Frisco system in South Missouri, is reported to have sold three more small lines to that system. The roads are the Cape Girardeau & Chester, the Saline Valley and the Chester, Perryville & Ste. Genevieve railroads, connecting Cape Girardeau, Jackson, Perryville, Chester and many smaller towns and traversing fine farming country.

The Houcks will retain the Cape Girardeau & Thebes terminal road, which will form the northern link of the Cape Girardeau and Hickman (Ky.) road which is being started and which will traverse an undeveloped farming country, passing through Charleston and several other towns.

Houck neither denies nor confirms the report of the sale of the roads, although he admitted that negotiations had been pending.

WEDDING KNOWN, BURGLAR STEALS BRIDE'S CLOTHES

Arthur W. Dowell, City Employe, Had Not Told of Marriage to Mae M. Revis.

A burglar who used the fire escape to enter the apartments of Arthur W. Dowell at the Portland Hotel, Nineteenth and Market streets, not only stole jewelry and clothing, but uncovered a secret that Dowell had been carefully guarding for a week, his marriage to Miss Mae M. Revis of Sullivan, Ind.

Dowell, who is an inspector of the police and fire alarm telegraph, was married a week ago at the Portland by Justice of the Peace Krueger. None of his friends were informed of the wedding. He was furnishing a flat and did not want them to find it out until the flat was ready for occupancy, thinking to circumvent practical jokers.

He and his bride had been living at the hotel and were being visited by his mother, Mrs. C. M. Dowell, Friday evening, when the robbery was committed.

All three were at dinner at 7:30 o'clock when their apartments were entered. The jewelry, furs and other clothing of the women were taken, including the bride's traveling gown and a purse of the elder Mrs. Dowell, containing a small amount.

When they returned to the rooms and found them turned topsy-turvy and the things gone, the police were called in and it was necessary for Dowell to reveal his marriage.

Dowell's bride is a great-granddaughter of John Sevrer, one time Governor of Tennessee.

FRENCHMAN HERDS TEXAS CATTLE WITH AEROPLANE

Demonstrates to Cowboys and Crowd That He Can Drive Cattle From the Air.

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 28.—For the first time in the history of aviation, an aeroplane was used for herding cattle yesterday. Rene Simon, the French aviator, brought the opening day of the Houston aviation meet to a close by quitting a spectacular aerial race with Rene Barrier, a Bleriot monoplane flyer, to dart down on the prairie and stampede a herd of cattle from under the eyes of the astounded cowboys.

Barrier had made several thrilling flights when Simon, who had been amusing himself and the crowd by his antics in midair, challenged Barrier to a race. After two laps Simon suddenly headed out of the grounds toward a herd of cattle.

The cowboys were riding across the field toward their charges when the aeroplane flashed into view. Simon circled the herd and then began to close in. The cattle moved off toward the aviation field and Simon, while the crowd shouted itself hoarse, brought his "beefers" into the grounds in true cowboy style, handling the aeroplane in an astonishing manner.

Then, just to demonstrate that he could really drive cattle with an aeroplane, he cut across over the herd and started them back to their original grazing grounds.

CONVICTED OF CHARMING $400 FROM MAN TO CHANGE FUTURE

Clairvoyant Educated for Priesthood Said Also to Have Fleeced Arkansas Woman.

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 28.—"The Rev. Dr. Waldron," alias Paul Palaska, alias H. C. Belmont, alias Dr. Paul, alias John Thomasky, a clairvoyant, educated to be a Catholic priest in Poland and who speaks several languages, was today convicted of embezzling $400 from William Bolin, a Shreveport patient.

Bolin took four $100 bills to Waldron to have his future changed. Waldron put the money in a charm bag, but placed another bag, containing four $1 bills around Bolin's neck. When Bolin was told to open the bag, Waldon had disappeared. He was captured in Joplin, Mo. He admitted that he had several aliases and that he once escaped from an officer at Denver, Colo., by jumping through a train window.

An officer of Helena, Ark., was here to get him in case of acquittal, saying he was wanted in Helena for grand larceny, which supposedly caused the death of a woman, whose diamonds in a necklace were replaced with rocks by "H. C. Belmont," identified as Waldron. An officer from Robinson County, Ill., held a warrant for him, in the case of a confidence game.

PASSENGERS TO PAY AT TIME THEY RESERVE TRAIN BERTHS

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Travelers may be forced to pay for Pullman berths they have reserved but which they do not use, if a new rule is adopted by Western railroads. The subject was considered at a meeting of the heads of the passenger departments here yesterday and definite action on it was postponed until the new Pullman rates go into effect, Feb. 1.

The plan is to insist on full payment for berths at the time of reservation, instead of accepting orders by telephone. This privilege has been abused, railroad men say, by persons who have changed their minds at the last minute and who have not notified the railroad, allowing the reserved berth to be unoccupied.

INDIAN JAILED TO PREVENT WEDDING CHICAGO HEIRESS

Former High School Girl Is Ordered Off Wyoming Reservation by Government.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Following two attempts to elope, intervention of Federal authorities prevented the marriage of Miss Madeline Sullivan, a former pupil of the Lakeview High School and an heiress, to an Indian on Wyoming Reservation.

Plenty Hawk, the prospective Indian bridegroom, was arrested yesterday by United States Government agents and locked up in the Crow Agency Jail near Cheyenne, Wyo. The young Chicago woman was ordered from the reservation and sent back to relatives at Sheridan.

The following telegram was received today by Mrs. Minnie Kirchner Sullivan, the girl's mother at her residence, 820 Crescent place:

"Madeline and Plenty Hawk not married. Madeline required to leave reservation at once. She went to Sheridan. Plenty Hawk in Crow Agency jail."

The telegram was signed "Smith, clerk in charge."

Immediately upon receipt, of the dispatch, Mrs. Sullivan wired the Chief of Police at Sheridan announcing the departure of her daughter for that place and asking him to place her in the care of relatives and to care for her until the arrival of money and railroad tickets covering her return to Chicago.

SCHNEIDERHAHN WANTS BRANCH LIBRARY FOR THE CITY HALL

Suggests Works Containing Statistics, but Will Not Object to Fiction.

Councilman E. V. P. Schneiderhahn wants a branch of the Public Library established at the city hall. A joint resolution, requesting the Library Board to fill a room or two at the city hall with volumes and tomes has been adopted by the Municipal Assembly at Councilman Schneiderhahn's request.

Councilman Schneiderhahn prefers that the contents of the branch library comprise books of history, research, statistics and other writings on the subject of municipal government, but will not object if fiction is included. The Library Board is asked to maintain as well as provide the branch.

MRS. SCHENK, FREE ON HER OWN BOND, SUED FOR DIVORCE

Only Juror Who Voted for Conviction Declares He Has Lost Employment and Friends.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 28.—Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk, recently tried on a charge of attempted poisoning of her millionaire husband, John O. Schenk, was released today on her own recognizance. While she was in court for this action, she was served with summons in a divorce suit.

The action of the court in practically giving Mrs. Schenk her freedom is regarded as indicating that she will not be called to trial a second time.

Isaac Hayman, the only Schenk juror who voted for conviction, complains loudly that he is being persecuted because he stuck hard to his oath and convictions and refused to acquit her.

The evidence that Dan Phillips gave when he betrayed Mrs. Schenk regarding the joy rides they took and his demeanor on the stand, instead of having the effect that the Prosecutor expected—that of robbing the woman of all sympathy—was reactive. Public opinion commiserated the woman.

Denied Employment, He Says.

Said Hayman, the obdurate juryman, today:

"I went down to the Myers Provision Co., where I am usually given employment. All the clerks told me to go chase myself, and the boss told me I wasn't wanted."

Hayman made this complaint directly to Prosecutor Handlan, asking that he be protected because he had done his duty as he saw it.

The Meyers Co.'s head denied that they had told Hayman to leave the place. However, the company placed an advertisement in the newspapers, announcing that Hayman was not connected with it. In explanation it was said that Hayman was never anything other than an occasional employe, that the fuss he was trying to make had decided the firm that he was not a desirable man to have around at all.

Fellow Jurors Charged Bribery.

Hayman's account of his experience of 25 hours, 12 of which were spent standing out against 11 men who wanted to bring in a verdict of acquittal, is fervid.

"They called me all sort of names," he said. "They sneered at me; they accused me of being bribed by the Schenks, they treated me so fiercely that for a while I lost my nerve and merely begged them to throw me out bodily of the juryroom and be done with it. They did not beat me; that's all they missed doing. I would rather that they had beat me than have been accused of being bribed. I am an honest man with a square record. I simply swore to do my duty as a juryman and I tried to live up to my oath, but if ever I get a chance to duck jury duty again, you can bet I'll do it."

DANCE TO BE GIVEN BY THE NUGENTS AID SOCIETY

The first anniversary dance for the benefit of Nugents Mutual Aid Association will be given in Westminster Hall, Feb. 8.

This association is comprised of the employes of the B. Nugent & Bro. Dry Goods Co. Its purpose is to give medical attention to employes, this includes a physician with office hours at the store, hospital with quick service and minor treatments, a nurse in constant attendance and specialists on eyes, ears, nose and throat. The association finds homes for young women employes who are strangers here, gets outside work for consumptives and gives financial assistance when needed.

The association was formed a year ago. Since then 1351 medical cases and 1300 surgical cases have been treated and two death benefits have been paid. The association has been self-supporting.

The dance is to raise money to have a country club for outings.

PORTUGAL AND CHURCH PART

LISBON, Jan. 28.—Foreign Minister Machade announced today that the Government's decree separating the church and state would be promulgated within a month.

Nevertheless, he added, that the Government had expressed regret to the Vatican that the Pope had no representative at the Vatican from Portugal where "the faithful are so numerous."

Newspaper Advertisement Points Way to Health

"I can truthfully say that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is a very good medicine, not alone for kidney trouble, but also for weak and sore back, as well as for rheumatism.

About a year ago I became ill and unable to work, my trouble being a lame back. I read of your Swamp-Root in the newspaper and in an Almanac. Believing it would do me good, I went to my druggist, Mr. Skinner, and purchased a bottle. Finding relief in one fifty-cent bottle, I purchased several more, and in a short time was able to continue with my work and am today feeling well and strong. I always recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to my friends as I believe it is as good a medicine as can be found.

Extra Tariff Session Confidently Expected

final adjournment on March 4. Many Senators are not interested, because they will retire from public life. Others do not care to express opinions because the organization and complexion of the Senate will be materially changed when it re-assembles at its next session.

The old-line wheel horses of the protective system, with but few exceptions, are strongly opposed to the reciprocity agreement. They all antagonize it as an entering wedge in the direction of downward tariff revision, or toward free trade. Those Senators committed to reciprocal trade agreements will insist that the present agreement does not conform to the theory which should dominate arrangements of this character.

"I am always in favor of any plan developed by the administration to carry out its policies," said Senator Depew. "For that reason I will support the Canadian reciprocity treaty."

Senator Burton of Ohio, said: "I not only am in favor of the reciprocity agreement as presented, but will make a speech in support of it and urging its acceptance."

The Democrats may swing around to supporting the treaty. It is in line with their demand for lower duties and does not go to the extent of lessening revenues. The final attitude of the Democrats will depend on the political advantage to be derived.

Border Senators Oppose.

Senator Borah (Rep.) of Idaho is strongly opposed to the treaty. He believes it would prove detrimental to the agricultural interests of the border states.

Senator Nelson (Rep.) of Minnesota is opposed for the same reasons.

Senator McCumber (Rep.) of North Dakota, a member of the Finance Committee, who assisted in framing the Payne-Aldrich bill, said:

"We are rapidly reaching a condition when home consumption of food products will equal or exceed home production, and when we will receive a direct benefit equal to the full amount of the tariff levied.

"It has been claimed, even in our State, that protection is of no avail to farm products. This is met by the fact that even at present, while we are still exporting, our wheat is worth from 10 to 20 cents a bushel more on the American than on the Canadian side of the line, and other products show an equal difference in favor of the American producer. If it is true that protection does protect, then what earthly reason can there be for taking that protection off our farm products?

"The very fact that the reciprocity agreement demands free entry of Canadian agricultural products shows almost conclusively there is something to be gained by the Canadian crop raiser and a corresponding loss to the American crop producer.

Grows Out of Living Cost.

"Of course this grows out of the agitation on the question of the higher cost of living. I appreciate the fact that the administration representing the entire United States, under the pressure that has been brought to bear from all of the manufacturing centers and from all the great cities, has attempted, so far as was in its power, to obtain a fair reciprocal arrangement with Canada, and one which would meet with the approval of the majority of the American people. But I am equally assured that the agreement will not be found to be acceptable to the agricultural sections of the United States."

This is a fair statement by a standpatter of the stand-pat view of reciprocity agreement.

Senator Cummins, the Progressive Republican leader, is noncommittal. His record is in the direction of advocating the agreement, but Iowa stands first in the matter of agricultural products.

Senator Young of Iowa is unalterably opposed to the treaty, but his position is embarrassing. He poses as a friend of the administration and will be somewhat torn between love and duty.

"I am opposed to the reciprocity treaty," said Senator Hale of Maine, the leader in the Senate in the absence of Aldrich. "It strikes at every industry in my State."

Senator Smoot, the mouthpiece of Aldrich, is opposed to the treaty, but will say nothing in regard to why he antagonizes it.

It is evident that with the rapidly congesting appropriation legislation pending in the House, and with the Senate in the position of having as yet passed only two appropriation bills, the necessary discussion of the reciprocity agreement will be impossible in this Congress.

Time Too Short to Finish.

Chairman Payne said today that the Committee on Ways and Means would proceed forthwith to the preparation of a bill framed to enact the agreement into law. It is generally believed that this bill can be forced through the House, but at the expense of time necessary to pass appropriation bills, thus forcing an extra session, even if the Senate should pass the Canadian bills.

In the House of Representatives, opinion is mixed. The opposition to the Canadian agreement is not confined to any party. It is the general belief that the opposition is of less than one-third the membership of the House. But it contains such a peculiar combination of members as to defy analysis along party lines. According to the agreement, the burden of the tariff reduction will fall upon the agricultural interests. The manufacturer is hardly menaced at all. For this reason the opposition to the agreement will be found in the membership of the agricultural states or among the members of the partially agricultural districts.

It may be cited, in illustration of this fact, that in Minnesota the delegation is divided. Representative Nye of Minneapolis, Representative Stevens of St. Paul and Representative Miller of Duluth, the three city men of the delegation, are in favor of the ratification of the agreement forthwith. The rural members of the Gopher State delegation are either silent or opposed to the agreement.

Senator-elect Asle J. Gronna of North Dakota, who is at present a member of the House, said: "This is a proposition to take away protection from the farmer without offering him anything in return. I am opposed to it and shall fight it to the best of my ability."

Representative Stevens of Minnesota said: "I am unqualifiedly in favor of this legislation. It is a broad, statesmanlike, patriotic proposition. I hope it will be enacted into law by this Congress."

Colleague on Other Side.

Back at Stevens comes his own colleague, Representative Volstead of Minnesota, who lives in the wheat country: "I am opposed to this proposal on the ground that it will deny the farmer a fair measure of protection."

Looking away from the great Northwest to the heart of the strongest protection sentiment in the Union, Pennsylvania, a similar divergency of opinion will be noted.

Representative Bates said: "I am right in line with the President's views in the matter of Canadian reciprocity. I believe that it is the sort of a measure that the country needs."

Representative Graham of Pittsburg said: "The Canadian reciprocity agreement is what the country needs. It will do no harm, and it will do incalculable good in the matter of reducing the cost of the necessities of life, particularly foodstuffs. If the bill enacting the agreement into law shall not be passed at this session, it would be a worthy subject for the attention of an extraordinary session."

"I am against the agreement," said Representative Focht, also a Republican, from Pennsylvania. "The agreement is in the nature of a reduction of the tariff, and I am in favor of the high protective tariff wall."

Chairman Payne, although favoring the agreement in the main, and having already expressed the opinion that a bill looking to its enactment will be reported within a few days by the Ways and Means Committee, is not hopeful of its passage at this session.

Representative Dalzell, who is a member of the Ways and Means Committee, and who is also chairman of the Committee on Rules, said: "It would be improper for me as a member of the committee which will report the rule looking to its consideration, to express, off-hand, an opinion on its merits or its chances of passage."

Among the Democrats there is more general unanimity of favorable opinion of the measure than among either Republicans or insurgents. Representative Foster of Illinois, Democrat, said: "I believe there are many things in the agreement which are good and that the good far outweighs the things which I would prefer not to subscribe."

Champ Clark for It.

Leader Champ Clark was out of the city, but he is known to be favorable to any measure which is framed with the object of reducing the tariff on necessities.

Representative Cox, Democrat, of Indiana, said: "This is the beginning of the end of the policy of protection for protection's sake, and marks the first step in the direction of a tariff for revenue only."

MUSICIAN-CONVICT RECAPTURED

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 28.—One of the trio of convict-musicians who escaped from Sing Sing by knocking guards insensible with musical instruments, has been captured at Bedford Station, 14 miles north of the prison. He is Ralph Taylor, "the silk-hat burglar," who was serving a 21-year term.

Taylor showed no resistance. After walking for miles, he said, he was chagrined to find he had been going in a circle. He denied that there was any premeditated plot to escape.

Sterling (Ill.) Rejects Commission.

STERLING, Ill., Jan. 28.—The commission form of city government was defeated here yesterday by a majority of four votes. A total of 1160 votes, about 50 per cent of the normal vote, was cast.

DYSPEPSIA-PROOF.

How Any Meal Can Be Thoroughly Enjoyed By Any Stomach.

Costs You Nothing to Try Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Men, as a rule, are first discovered by their enemies. Their antagonists turn on the searchlight, and the proof of merit will lie in being able to stand the flash.

It was only in this way that Mr. White ever knew that dyspepsia was one of Mr. Black's worst enemies. Sitting face to face at a two-by-four table, he handed his afflicted friend the bill of fare:

Oyster Cocktail. Stuffed Olives.
Boston Clam Chowder.
Strained Gumbo.
Sirloin Steak with Mushrooms.
Roast Beef Hash.
Boiled Ox Tongue with Sauerkraut.
Lobster a la Newburg.
Baked Pork and Beans.
Combination Crab Salad.
Hot Mince Pie.
Pineapple Fritters.

Mr. White ordered a "little of each." Mr. Dyspepsia Black ordered crackers and a glass of milk. "I had such a big breakfast this morning," he said, "that I'll just take a bite to keep you company." But Mr. White could not be deceived: "I am afraid you can't stand the gleam, Mr. Black. Why don't you say you have dyspepsia and be done with it? You'll always have that hungry look anyhow as long as you have dyspepsia. Now listen. My stomach was in just as bad condition as yours at one time. But now I can eat anything, at any time. For instance, this clam chowder or sirloin steak or even the lobster would be just as welcome to my stomach as your crackers and milk. You don't realize how this dyspepsia business is robbing you of your spirit, of your energy and ability to think quickly. I can't help notice it. You haven't the cheer and sociability you had three months ago. Now, I'll tell you what to do," and thereat, the cheerful Mr. White took a vial from his pocket and extracted a wee tablet. "There, there is a tablet that contains an ingredient, one grain of which digests 3,000 grains of food. For even the worst dyspeptic it's the only thing that really gives relief. The reason is it relieves the stomach of nearly all the work it has to do, digests everything in the stomach and stimulates the gastric juice. I can't get along without them. They are Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. You can get them anywhere on earth for 50 cents a package."

Yes, it is true, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets absolutely stop heartburn, nausea, indigestion, dyspepsia of the worst type, sour stomach, bloaty feeling and all eructations and irritastomach. They cheer you up, and make you get all the good there is in your food. You will forget you ever had a stomach to worry you.

Mother and Son Give Words of Praise

Mrs. Barbara Burke suffered for years from malaria and chills. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey drove the disease from her system and keeps her healthy and happy. Her son says Duffy's is "one of the family." He would not be without a bottle in the medicine chest.

MRS. BARBARA BURKE and her son, Mr. VALLY BURKE

Mrs. Burke writes: "Fifteen years ago I was a sufferer from malaria fever and chills. On the advice of a friend I took Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and was cured. It proves effective in keeping malaria from my system and is a grand medicine for aged people. I have continued to use it ever since as a tonic." Mrs. Barbara Burke, 730 So. Liberty St., New Orleans, La.

In his letter Mr. Burke says: "It is with pleasure that I say and write and it is a pity that I cannot write these words in gold, 'Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is just one of the family, a good help in need.' Good luck to you." Vally Burke, Adv. Agent, Winter Garden Theater, New Orleans, La.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

has always been and is now a pure, wholesome, healthful medicinal whiskey, produced without regard to expense in compliance with the requirements of the Foods and Drugs Act, the doctors' "Materia Medica" and the "Pharmocopoeia" the two recognized authorities on drugs and medicines in the United States. Great care is used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus producing a liquid food, tonic and stimulant, requiring no digestion. Its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach. Its gentle and invigorating properties influence for good every important organ in the body. It makes the old feel young and keeps the young strong and vigorous.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, be sure you get the genuine. It is sold in SEALED BOTTLES ONLY—never in bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Price $1.00 large bottle. Write Medical Department, The Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y., for doctors' advice and an illustrated medical booklet containing testimonials and rules for health, both sent free.

MEN OR TICKETS.

"We are electing men, not tickets."

There is impact in that sentence. If its full significance could be appreciated Mr. Lehmann as counsel for the new charter might be said to have won his case.

Heretofore in municipal elections we have been voting for the symbol of the party under which the candidates' names appeared rather than for the candidates themselves. In exceptional instances, it is true, the pre-eminent fitness of a contestant has made such appeal as to compel an intelligent verdict at the polls, instead of a party pronouncement. Unfortunately, it has been too rare an exception to a stodgy, stupid rule.

Under the new charter intelligent choice, predicated solely upon the merits of the appellant to the people, will be the rule. The passing of party fetiches and phylacteries with political jobs from municipal politics and the election of men to the posts of municipal government means the end of party misrule and the beginning of government of citizens, by citizens and for citizens.

The difference between electing tickets and electing men is the difference between boss control and the people's rule.

[illegible] up to the President of the United States is responsible [illegible] to nobody except the people.

[illegible] the buggy question of providing that relief is not one [illegible] miles away [illegible] and walked [illegible] cal expediency; it is a question of official [illegible] Bill was pith.

Vote for St. Louis; smash the corrupt combines in the House of Delegates.

IN THE CITY HOSPITAL.

Further information adds its depressing weight to the prevalent impression that the City Hospital is not a desirable place in which to be incarcerated either as patient, prisoner or employe. This is more humiliating since Supt. Morfit began to run the place like a private institution and with much secrecy. Still things will leak out. Last Tuesday a guard was beaten badly by an inmate of the observation ward. Dr. Schwab, visiting neurologist, says this ward is a dangerous place. Sick, wounded, alcoholic and insane are all mixed there higgledy-piggledy. But it has become safer since the iron cuspidors—handy weapons—were removed and the number of guards increased.

These occurrences and opinions make more interesting the report that the commission is considering an increase in the salaries of employes by a total of $138,000 a year. This will make the employes more contented at least. However, an ordinary person would say that a better use of the money would be to make an observation ward that would be less indiscriminate in population. It is embarrassing to make suggestions as to the manner of conducting a private institution and it would probably not be permissible except for the fact that this $138,000 is public money.

Vote for St. Louis; smash the predatory interests.

MR. TAFT'S UNDERTAKING.

Adoption of the reciprocity provision with Canada will put the influence of President Taft with the Senate to a test. Under the Dingley law, which contained an elaborate scheme for general reciprocity treaties, President McKinley appointed John A. Kasson special commissioner to negotiate with foreign countries. Mr. Kasson negotiated a score or more of treaties. European countries entered readily into the plan. The people here were delighted. It was taken as a redemption of the Senate's promise that the Dingley rates were made high that reciprocity treaties might be more advantageously negotiated.

But every treaty Mr. Kasson negotiated and every treaty whose adoption Mr. McKinley indorsed and recommended was smothered in the Senate. It required all the great influence Mr. Roosevelt could exert under sentimental circumstances to get the reciprocity treaty with Cuba through the Senate. Mr. Roosevelt failed dismally to get the Hay-Bond treaty with Newfoundland through that body. Only threats of retaliation and the prospects of the destruction of our foreign trade impelled Mr. Taft to override Aldrich's pet scheme to have the maximum, not the minimum, rates of the Payne-Aldrich law in general effect.

In the light of past experience Mr. Taft's new effort to stem the tide that is rolling in to engulf the stand-pat adherents of privilege and tariff graft and overwhelm the Republicans, takes on new interest. Can he win, even with the aid of changed conditions, [illegible] There McKinley failed and Roosevelt only half [illegible] "Tew"?

VOTE FOR ST. LOUIS.

The new charter is the most important issue that has been before the people of St. Louis for a generation.

Every qualified voter should cast his ballot.

Every voter who wants St. Louis to make progress, to go forward, not to stand still or go backward, should vote for the charter.

Every voter who wants the city empowered to compel good public utility service at reasonable rates should vote for the new charter.

Every voter who wants to rid the city of the vicious power of the spoils bosses, the boodle combines, the grafters, the roughneck conspiracies in the House of Delegates and the predatory interests should vote for the charter.

The spoilsmen, the grafters, the boodlers, the henchmen of the greedy interests will go to the polls to vote against the charter. Shall the control of the city be left in their hands by the default of citizens?

Vote for the new charter.

Vote for St. Louis.

The local Republican organization is aligned with the worst elements—all the selfish interests—in this city to beat the new charter for the purpose of saving the spoils system. Do the Republican voters approve this ruinous policy of the party bosses?

WHY A SPECIAL SESSION IS NECESSARY.

Speaking in behalf of the plan for a special session and immediate revision downward of the tariff rates on the necessaries of life, Representative Randell of Texas called attention to the bill he introduced on Dec. 10 last. This bill provides that the date of the meeting of Congress be changed from the first Monday in December to March 4.

The Constitution provides that "the Congress shall assemble at least once every year, and such meetings shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day."

No different day has ever been appointed. Since the beginning, Congress has been meeting 13 months after its members were elected. Such a lapse of time between an expression of the popular will and action on it occasioned no inconvenience in stage-coach days. But now there is demand for speedy acquiescence in the plainly expressed commands of the people. Never before has there been such an apt illustration as is now before the country.

Last November the people repudiated the Payne-Aldrich law by an overwhelming vote. Their mandate might as well have been addressed to the North Pole. The repudiated policies of a defeated party continue in operation. Congressmen, retired by disgusted constituencies, continue in office and a President, in the face of logical demands, stands unmoved by the appeals for a special session. It makes representative government a travesty.

Without a special session the correction of the blunders of the Republicans will become all but impossible until the overshadowing and disturbing presidential election is over. The people must again declare their wishes at the polls before they can get positive and effective action, unless there is a special session.

Crying as is the present need for the removal of the extortionate tariff taxes, the necessity for a change in the date when a newly elected Congress shall assemble is almost as acute. If the Democrats are sincere in their desire that the government be made democratic in fact as well as in spirit they will make this Randell bill into a law as soon as they have completed the work of wiping the vicious Payne-Aldrich law off the statute book.

Vote for St. Louis; smash the spoils bosses.

CHANGING THE LIQUOR LAW.

The liquor license law amendments proposed by the Citizens' Defense Committee is the next step forward in the regulation of dramshops. The proposed amendments have the advantage of inviting the support of the saloon man because they provide for the renewal of existing licenses. The limit of one saloon to 500 inhabitants will ultimately reduce the number of saloons in St. Louis by one-third, and it will increase the value of all licenses. By making the licenses more valuable it will make their owners particularly careful not to risk losing them by violating the law. The increase in the cost of a license also eliminates from the argument the question of a reduced revenue.

The most notable change proposed is the club license of $250. If the law applies to all the clubs where liquor is dispensed it may be acceptable. All bona fide clubs should be on the same basis. Lid clubs should be abolished.

The proposed changes are rational and conservative. They are the result of careful and unbiased study and deserve earnest consideration.

President Taft is said to favor Frisco as the site of the Panama exposition. Besides he couldn't carry New Orleans in 1912 anyway.

CORPORAL PUNISHMENT IN SCHOOLS.

As a maxim of undisputed pedagogical force "spare the rod and spoil the child" went out when the kindergarten scheme came in. The Froebel philosophy displaced all precedents. It decreed that the child should be led, not driven. It changed the outlook of the pupil toward the teacher and the attitude of the teacher toward the child. Whipping gradually became obsolete. The teacher willingly relinquished a disagreeable privilege or duty and passed it back to the parents, whose views have changed also.

The fallacy of corporal punishment has spread otherwise. It has been abandoned in penal institutes where modern ideas have penetrated. For all persons of the class of wards other means of correction and reformation have been found. In any case, whether in the school, the home or the prison corporal punishment is the recourse of desperation and is resorted to only when all other remedies have failed and then only after careful consideration.

In such circumstances the whipping of two school boys by principals seems a revival of a discredited custom. It is more surprising to learn that the school authorities approved in both cases and more surprising still, that in St. Louis the rattan is prescribed by rule as the instrument of punishment.

It is as incongruous to the modern sensibilities as if wife beating were held permissible under the Blackstonian rule that it is the husband's privilege to whip his spouse so long as he uses a rod no bigger than his thumb.

The St. Louis Board of Education should repeal this rule. It should adopt another forbidding corporal punishment under any circumstances. It is no less for the good of the schools than of the children. The spectacle of a school principal in police court with his pupils pointing accusing fingers at him is not inspiring. Another school principal with a black eye as the mark of parental ire is not inspiring either. Such things as the result, and corporal punishment as the cause, can be dispensed with to excellent advantage.

If the people of St. Louis do not want the power to own and control public utilities; if they do not want the power to regulate the rates and service of public utilities, they will vote against the new charter.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Judge Rombauer for Charter.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A communication written by my brother, Col. R. J. Rombauer, in opposition to the proposed new charter, appeared in Friday's issue of the Globe-Democrat. I am informed, that owing to the similarity of names a great many persons are of opinion that the communication emanates from me. To rectify this mistake permit me to say that I am an unconditional supporter of the proposed new charter, not because I consider it perfect, but because upon the careful analysis of its provisions, I consider it much superior to the present charter. Homemade Smoke.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Walking through Van-Morland place, I counted 92 per cent of the houses belching soft coal smoke and soot on themselves and neighbors; a consequence either of ignorance or of false economy. In my house chestnut anthracite is used in the kitchen, egg in the furnace, and is absolutely smokeless. It probably costs $12 to $15 more per year than soft coal would, and is worth it in comfort and cleanliness.

Over 60 per cent of the smoke made west of Grand avenue comes from the homes. Here is a fine and proper field for the exertions of the Wednesday Club, entirely in the line of women's work. They might begin by inquiring among their own members how many do or will use anthracite in their ranges, grates and furnaces instead of soft coal, and thus pluck the smoke out of their own eyes first.

The greatest help to the solution of the smoke problem would be 50-cent gas. At that price citizens could afford to use it for hygienic heating. Widnes, England, a town of 30,000, owning its plant, has gas for homes at 30 cents per thousand; for factories 25 cents. There are scores of English cities, many of them owning the plants, getting gas from 40 to 60 cents, the average price being 50 cents. It must cost the Laclede Gas Co., receiving its coal by a barge water haul, at very low cost, less to make and deliver gas, than in England. W. E. STUYVESANT.

Persecution Wanted.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The bill to drive out fake fortune tellers is really not intended for that purpose. Its object is to drive out the religion of Spiritualism with which the fortune tellers have nothing to do. Instead of opposing this persecution, Spiritualists should welcome it. It means unity, strength and increase for Spiritualism. The apathy that has fallen upon Spiritualism is leading its members to other churches. The children of Spiritualists are attending orthodox Sunday schools. It needs persecution to revive it. Behold the Jews! Persecution has made them the greatest people on earth. It can do much for Spiritualism. OLD MAN.

A New Charter Benefit.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Under the present charter the City Counselor and his assistants, members of the Board of Public Improvements and the heads of other important departments are appointed by the Mayor at the beginning of the third year of his term for terms of four years. All of the appointees serve two years under the Mayor making these appointments and during the first two years of the succeeding Mayor.

These appointees being personal friends and members of the same political party will be loyal to the Mayor who appoints them and will exert their best efforts to make his administration a success. Now at the end of two years and in the middle of their terms, the Mayor who appointed these holdover officials goes out of office—and the hearts of these holdover appointed officials go with their friend and benefactor, the retiring Mayor. This is a fact and it is human nature as well. And then these holdover appointed officials begin a two-year term of service under a stranger, possibly of opposite political faith.

The relations between the new Mayor and the holdovers are strained, and while there may be a seeming harmony, it is only on the surface.

The first two years of each newly elected Mayor's term is not a success as to betterments in the business workings in those departments managed by holdover appointed officials.

The provision in the old charter, that appointments to be made by the Mayor shall be made at the beginning of the third year of his term, is vicious in effect and has interfered with an intelligent and progressive administration of the affairs of St. Louis.

THE COMBINE'S FAMOUS OATH.

The famous oath taken by members of the Combine of 1899 in the House of Delegates is reprinted from the Post-Dispatch. The Combine was formed under the existing charter:

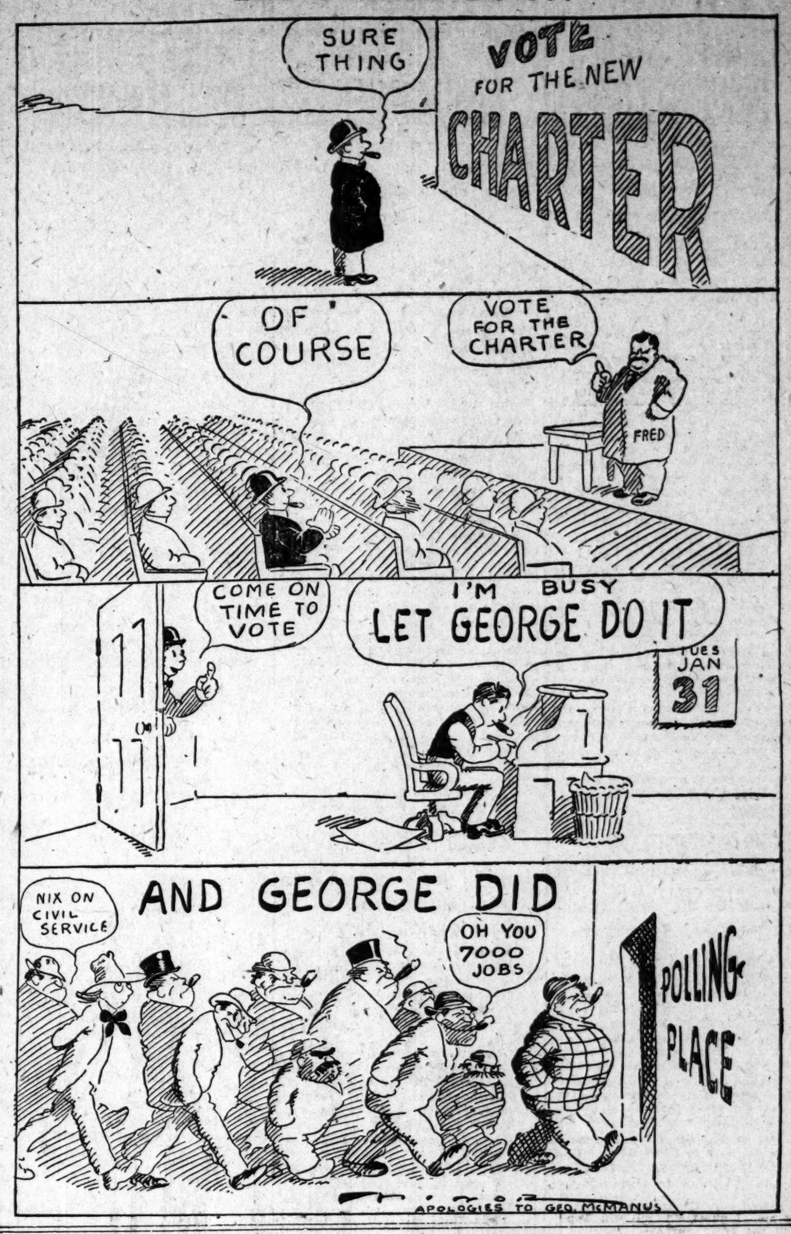

I do solemnly swear before the Almighty God that in associating myself and in becoming a member of this combine, I will vote and act with the combine whenever and wherever I may be so ordered to do.

And I further solemnly swear that I will not at any place or time reveal the fact that there is a combine, and that I will not communicate to any person or persons anything that may take place at any meeting of the combine.

And I do solemnly agree that, in case I should reveal the fact that any person in this combine has received money, I hereby permit and authorize other members of this combine to take the forfeit of my life in such manner as they may deem proper, and that my throat may be cut, my tongue torn out, and my body cast into the Mississippi River.

And all of this I do solemnly swear, so help me God.

TWO POPULAR IDOLS.

From the New Haven Journal-Courier.

How striking the similarity between these whirlwind campaigns of Bryan and those closed so recently by the indomitable Teddy. How similar as to the popular acclaim, the rush of multitudes to see, and greet and applaud, and again how complete the turn of that tide of popular sentiment. And now how ominous and how complete the silence of Teddy and the quietude of Bryan. It had been thought that Bryan, and ditto Teddy—like Tennyson's brook, would "flow on forever," in never-ending bursts of passionate oratorical platitudes, but Bryanism is dead and Oyster Bay is as silent as the oysters of this once twin capital of the nation. Yet how similar also in another respect. Each has a great source of inspiration and consolation, a potent means of communicating with the great outside world. Each has an organ, each a printing press. The world can be taught to realize that each "still lives," and that each, with messages almost identical—"borrowed plumes" mostly on Teddy's part—can carry on the work of world reformation.

"COMFORTABLE AND HAPPY."

From the New York Trade Record.

The main objection by many of the wool trade to a tariff commission is that it would be, in their opinion, a source of constant and never-ending agitation causing disruption to business. This always falls with greatest cruelty upon the laboring classes. Evidence of this was shown in the experience of the past year, when the fear of even a remote tariff reduction paralyzed business, causing many mills to run on short time. A family receiving $15 a week for their labor in a mill, and who were comfortable and happy, have found that their incomes were reduced one-half through lack of employment, with no corresponding reduction in the cost of living. Distress and unhappiness at once prevailed. This distress at times was so acute in the mill districts of Rhode Island during the last season as to have been a subject for comment in the newspapers.

Pity the Poor Smoker.

From the London Chronicle.

There is nothing like getting a clear opinion. As this from the Lancet for smokers: "Smoking * * * is to be deprecated because the pungency of the pyrolligneous products contained in tobacco smoke renders the buccal mucosa insensitive to alimentary stimulation—in fact, their effect is to dull or abolish the olfacto-gustatory reflex, thus depriving us of * * * 'appetite juice.'" So now, then, pity your buccal mucosa and knock out that pipe!

To Remove the Postal Deficit.

Don C. Seitz in the World's Work.

The remedy for the postal deficit is good business management, divorced from politics; and there is no other remedy. Tinkering with it by complicated and discriminating patchwork legislation is simply dodging a plain duty and is adding more complications to an already complicated wrong method.

Justifiable Wonder.

MORE SAMPLE SPEECHES.

ANTI-CHARTERITE: Dear friends. Now I will tell you what my wife thinks of the charter. She doesn't like it at all. There is nothing in it about women voting. (Laughter.) Friends, my wife is not a suffragette, and she likes to feel that she will not have to be one. At the same time, she does want to vote, and she thinks the new charter should give her the chance. I think so, too. (Murmurs.) Now, friends, don't think me a crank. I am not for equal suffrage out and out, but I think it has one thing to commend it, and that is this: It would emancipate the male vote. (Laughter.) That is, having a vote of their own, the women would probably let the men have a vote of their own. (Cries of Hear! and By Jove!) My friends, it is a terrible mistake to suppose that the women of this country do not vote and have not voted since goodness knows when. I haven't voted since I was married. (Laughter.) To be sure, I have cast a ballot, but my wife has really done the voting, as all of you that are married have reason to know. That is all, friends. You have been very kind. (Cheers and prolonged laughter.)

* * *

Pro-Charterite: Sweet friends. To quote our old friend the County Chairman, this is no time for bird shot. I seriously question if some of these people who are displaying so much solicitude for the city really care anything about it. They seem suddenly to have appeared in walks which had not known them before, and they probably will disappear from them as mysteriously as they came. Now, my friends, I don't believe in that kind of public service. It doesn't ring true, and I think we ought to put everyone of those fellows under a bond to serve the community for five years before we will hear what he has to say. (Cheers.) That would mighty soon separate the sheep from the goats (laughter), and I am sorry we didn't think of it when the campaign began. Did you ever hear of the Sophists, my friends? (Laughter.) The Sophists were a set of men who appeared in Athens at a time when, like ourselves, the more civic-spirited Athenians were trying to substitute a new charter for an old one. The Sophists as a rule did not themselves believe what they held to be true (laughter), but their skill in debate was such that it is said of them that they could almost invariably make the worse cause appear the better one. At any rate, they opposed the new charter and defeated it, since which time Athens has not been anything much but a sort of interesting old ruin. (Laughter.) Look out for the Sophists, my friends. (Cheers.)

* * *

Business Man: St. Louis, Mo., January 28, 1911. Gentlemen. In response to a request that I should do so, I hereby announce that I am for the charter and hope it will carry. There is no doubt in my mind but it is a great deal better charter than the one under which we are operating, and I think it would not only make St. Louis a bigger and better city, but would increase our sales (laughter) over anything they have ever been. Thanking you, and hoping for further orders, I am, very truly yours, etc. (Prolonged laughter.)

JANUARY 28.

Only three days now remaining
Of the charter Armageddon
Till the ballot shall determine
If the city is a dead un.

EAST AND WEST.

The announcement that a St. Louisan has dropped $15,000 upon someone's assurance that there was a simple-minded faro bank in New York that he could break will surprise no one.

The impression that New York is the most provincial spot in the country has been quietly taking possession of the West for some time, and if it has tempted some Westerner to presume too far upon the artlessness of that ingenuous port, it might reasonably have been expected to do so, for New York is a great temptation, and the West withal is only human. However, it is interesting to discover that our designs upon the metropolis are becoming financial. As long as they were literary and political we enjoyed a prestige which New York neither cared very much about nor very well understood. Our financial power, once we have gotten around to it, will be something she can feel.

FRANK.—The late King of England was a Freemason; George V is not, though his father is said to have recommended that he should be one. Emperor William was initiated as a Freemason, but virtually severed his connection with the craft when he succeeded to the throne. Frederick VIII of Denmark and the kings of Norway and Sweden and the President of France are Freemasons. The Duke of Connaught succeeded Albert Edward to the Grand Mastership in Great Britain when the latter became King.

O. W. E.—To repair mirror: Remove the silvering from the glass around the scratch so that the clear space will be about one-fourth inch wide. Thoroughly clean the edge of a broken piece of looking glass; mark out a piece of silvering a little larger than the clear space on the mirror to be repaired. Now place very minute drops of mercury on the center of the patch and allow it to remain for a few minutes, clear away the silvering around the patch and slide the latter from the glass. Place it over the clear spot on the mirror. Gently press it down with a tuft of cotton.—Hopkins.

STUART.—Under direct primaries every qualified voter has a right to vote on candidates for nominations. If voters all exercised this right they could control all nominations, and eliminate party bosses. The ballots used in primaries do not go to committees. Under the convention plan of making nominations, which the primary supersedes, the bosses controlled the delegates, and through the delegates the nominations of all candidates. The bosses now unite on candidates in the primaries, and often succeed, in the cities especially, in nominating their "slates"—because the people, as a whole, are too indifferent to vote.

The Ransom of "Red Chief."

One of the Latest Stories From the Pen of Greatest American Short Story Writer.

By O. Henry.

IT looked like a good thing, but wait till I tell you. We were down South, in Alabama—Bill Driscoll and myself—when this kidnaping idea struck us. It was, as Bill afterward expressed it, "during" a moment of temporary apparition;" but we didn't find that out till later. There was a town down there as flat as a flannel cake and called Summit, of course. It contained inhabitants as undeleterious and self-satisfied a class of peasantry as ever gathered around a maypole.

Bill and me had a joint capital of about $800 and we needed just $2000 more to pull off a fraudulent town-lot scheme in Western Illinois with. We talked it over on the front steps of the hotel. Philoprogenitiveness, says we, is strong in semi-rural communities; therefore, and for other reasons, a kidnaping project ought to do better there than in the radius of newspapers that send reporters out in plain clothes to stir up talk about such things. We knew that Summit couldn't get after us with anything stronger than constables and, maybe, some lackidasical bloodhounds and a diatribe in the Weekly Farmer's Budget. So it looked good.

We selected for our victim the only child of a prominent citizen named Ebenezer Dorset. The father was respectable and tight, a mortgage fancier and a stern, upright collection-plate passer and foreclioser. The kid was a boy of 10, with bas-relief freckles, and hair the color of the cover of the magazine you buy at the news-stand when you want to catch a train. Bill and me figured that Ebenezer would melt down for a ransom of $2000 to a cent. But wait till I tell you.

About two miles from Summit was a little mountain, covered with a dense cedar brake. On the rear elevation of this mountain was a cave. There we stored provisions.

One evening after sundown we drove in a buggy past old Dorset's house. The kid was in the street, throwing rocks at a kitten on the opposite fence.

"Hey, little boy!" says Bill, "would you like to have a bag of candy and a nice ride?"

The boy catches Bill neatly in the eye with a piece of brick.

"That will cost the old man an extra $500," says Bill, climbing over the wheel.

That boy put up a fight like a welterweight cinnamon bear; but, at last, we got him down in the bottom of the buggy and drove away. We took him up to the cave, and I hitched the horse in the cedar brake. Afterdark I drove the buggy to the little village, three miles away, where we had hired it, and walked back to the mountain.

Bill was pasting court-plaster over the scratches and bruises on his features. There was a fire burning behind the big rock at the entrance of the cave and the boy was watching a pot of boiling coffee, with two buzzard tail feathers stuck in his red hair. He points a stick at me when I come up and says:

"Ha! cursed paleface, do you dare to enter the camp of Red Chief, the terror of the plains?"

Yes, sir, that boy seemed to be having the time of his life. The fun of camping out in a cave had made him forget that he was a captive himself. He immediately christened me Snake-eye, the spy, and announced that, when his braves returned from the warpath I was to be broiled at the stake at the rising of the sun.

"Red Chief," says I to the kid, "would you like to go home?"

"Aw, what for?" says he. "I don't have any fun at home. I hate to go to school. I like to camp out. You won't take me back home again, Snake-eye, will you?"

"Not right away," says I. "We'll stay here in the cave a while."

"All right!" says he. "That'll be fine. I never had such fun in all my life."

We went to bed about 11 o'clock. We spread down some wide blankets and quilts and put Red Chief between us. We weren't afraid he'd run away. He kept us awake for three hours, jumping up and reaching for his rifle and screeching: "Hist! pard," in mine and Bill's ears, as the fancied crackle of a twig or the rustle of a leaf revealed to his young imagination the stealthy approach of the outlaw band. At last I fell into a troubled sleep and dreamed that I had been kidnaped and chained to a tree by a ferocious pirate with red hair.

Just at daybreak I was awakened by a series of awful screams from Bill. I jumped up to see what the matter was. Red Chief was sitting on Bill's chest, with one hand twined in Bill's hair. In the other he had the sharp case-knife we used for slicing bacon; and he was industriously and realistically trying to take Bill's scalp, according to the sentence that had been pronounced upon him the evening before.

I got the knife away from the kid and made him lie down again. But, from that moment, Bill's spirit was broken. He laid down on his side of the bed, but he never closed an eye again in sleep as long as that boy was with us. I dozed off for a while, but along toward sun-up I remembered that Red Chief had said I was to be burned at the stake at the rising of the sun. I wasn't nervous or afraid; but I sat up and lit my pipe and leaned against a rock.

"What you getting up so soon for, Sam?" asked Bill.

"Me?" says I. "Oh, I got a kind of a pain in my shoulder. I thought sitting up would rest it."

"You're a liar!" says Bill. "You're afraid. You was to be burned at sunrise, and you was afraid he'd do it. And he would, too, if he could find a match. Ain't it awful, Sam? Do you think anybody will pay out money to get a little limp like that back home?"

"Sure," said I. "A rowdy kid like that is just the kind that parents dote on. Now, you and the Chief get up and cook breakfast, while I go up on the top of this mountain and reconnoiter."

Just then we heard a kind of warwhoop, such as David might have emitted when he knocked out the champion Goliath. It was a sling that Red Chief had pulled out of his pocket, and he was whirling it around his head.

I dodged, and heard a heavy thud and a kind of a sigh from Bill, like a horse gives out when you take his saddle off. A niggerhead rock the size of an egg had caught Bill just behind his left ear. He loosened himself all over and fell in the fire across the frying pan of hot water for washing the dishes. I dragged him out and poured cold water on his head for half an hour.

By and by Bill sits up and feels behind his ear and says: "Sam, do you know who my favorite biblical character is?"

"Take it easy," says I. "You'll come to your senses presently."

"King Herod," says he. "You won't go away and leave me here alone, will you, Sam?"

I went out and caught that boy and shook him until his freckles rattled.

"If you don't behave," says I, "I'll take you straight home. Now, are you going to be good, or not?"

"I was only funning," says he sullenly. "I didn't mean to hurt Old Hank. But what did he hit me for? I'll behave, Snake-eye, if you won't send me home, and if you'll let me play the Black Scout today."

"I don't know the game," says I. "That's for you and Mr. Bill to decide. He's your playmate for the day. I'm going away for a while, on business. Now, you come in and make friends with him and say you are sorry for hurting him, or home you go, at once."

I made him and Bill shake hands, and then I took Bill aside and told him I was going to Poplar Cove, a little village three miles from the cave, and find out what I could about how the kidnaping had been regarded in Summit. Also, I thought it best to send a peremptory letter to old man Dorset that day, demanding the ransom and dictating how it should be paid.

Bill and I got paper and pencil and worked on the letter while Red Chief, with a blanket wrapped around him, strutted up and down, guarding the mouth of the cave. Bill begged me tearfully to make the ransom $1500 instead of $2000. "I ain't attempting," says he, "to decry the celebrated moral aspect of parental affection, but we're dealing with humans, and it ain't human for anybody to give up $2000 for that 40-pound chunk of freckled wildcat. I'm willing to take a chance at $1500. You can charge the difference up to me."

So, to relieve Bill, I acceded, and we collaborated a letter that ran this way:

Ebenezer Dorset, Esq.:

We have your boy concealed in a place far from Summit. It is useless for you or the most skilful detectives to attempt to find him. Absolutely, the only terms on which you can have him restored to you are these: We demand $1500 in large bills for his return; the money to be left at midnight tonight at the same spot and in the same box as your reply—as hereinafter described. If you agree to these terms, send your answer in writing by a solitary messenger tonight at 8:30 o'clock. After crossing Owl Creek, on the road to Poplar Cove, there are three large trees about a hundred yards apart, close to the fence of the wheat field on the right-hand side. At the bottom of the fence-post, opposite the third tree, will be found a small pasteboard box.

The messenger will place the answer in this box and return immediately to Summit.

If you attempt any treachery or fail to comply with our demand as stated you will never see your boy again.

If you pay the money as demanded, he will be returned to you safe and well within three hours. These terms are final, and if you do not accede to them no further communication will be attempted. TWO DESPERATE MEN.

I addressed this letter to Dorset, and put it in my pocket. As I was about to start, the kid comes up to me and says:

"Aw, Snake-eye, you said I could play the Black Scout while you was gone."

"Play it, of course," says I. "Mr. Bill will play with you. What kind of a game is it?"

"I'm the Black Scout," says Red Chief, "and I have to ride to the stockade to warn the settlers that the Indians are coming. I'm tired of playing Indian myself. I want to be the Black Scout."

"All right," says I, "It sounds harmless to me. I guess Mr. Bill will help you foil the pesky savages."

I walked over to Poplar Cove and sat around the postoffice and store, talking with the chawbacons that came in to trade. One whiskerando says that he hears Summit is all upset on account of Elder Ebenezer Dorset's boy having been lost or stolen. That was all I wanted to know. I bought some smoking tobacco, referred casually to the price of black-eyed peas, posted my letter surreptitiously and came away. The Postmaster said the mail carrier would come by in an hour to take the mail on to Summit.

When I got back to the cave Bill and the boy were not to be found. I explored the vicinity of the cave, and risked a yodel or two, but there was no response.

So I lighted my pipe and sat down on a mossy bank to await developments.

In about half an hour I heard the bushes rustle, and Bill wabbled out into the little glade in front of the cave. Behind him was the kid, stepping softly like a scout, with a broad grin on his face. Bill stopped, took off his hat and wiped his face with a red handkerchief. The kid stopped about eight feet behind him.

"Sam," says Bill, "I suppose you'll think I'm a renegade, but I couldn't help it. I'm a grown person with masculine proclivities and habits of self-defense, but there is a time when all systems of egotism and predominance fail. The boy is gone. I have sent him home. All is off. There was martyrs in old times," goes on Bill, "that suffered death rather than give up the particular graft they enjoyed. None of 'em ever was subjugated to such supernatural tortures as I have been. I tried to be faithful to our articles of deprecation; but there came a limit."

"What's the trouble, Bill?" I asks him.

"I was rode," says Bill, "the 90 miles to the stockade, not barring an inch. Then, when the settlers was rescued, I was given oats. Sand ain't a palatable substitute. And then, for an hour I had to try to explain to him why there was nothin' in holes, how a road can run both ways and what makes the grass green. I tell you, Sam, a human can only stand so much. I takes him by the neck of his clothes and drags him down the mountain. On the way he kicks my legs black-and-blue from the knees down; and I've got to have two or three bites on my thumb and hand cauterized.

"But he's gone"—continues Bill—"gone home. I showed him the road to Summit and kicked him about eight feet nearer there at one kick. I'm sorry we lose the ransom; but it was either that or Bill Driscoll to the madhouse."

Bill is puffing and blowing, but there is a look of ineffable peace and growing content on his rose-pink features.

"Bill," says I, "there isn't any heart disease in your family, is there?"

"No," says Bill, "nothing chronic except malaria and accidents. Why?"

"Then you might turn around," says I, "and have a look behind you."

Bill turns and sees the boy, and loses his complexion and sits down plump on the ground and begins to pluck aimlessly at grass and little sticks. For an hour I was afraid for his mind. And then I told him that my scheme was to put the whole job through immediately and that we would get the ransom and be off with it by midnight if old Dorset fell in with our proposition. So Bill braced up enough to give the kid a weak sort of a smile and a promise to play the Russian in a Japanese war with him as soon as he felt a little better.

I had a scheme for collecting that ransom without danger of being caught by counterplots that ought to commend itself to professional kidnapers. The tree under which the answer was to be left—and the money later on—was close to the road fence with big, bare fields on all sides. If a gang of constables should be watching for any one to come for the note they could see him a long way off crowning the fields or in the road. But no, sirree! At 8:30 I was up in that tree as well hidden as a tree toad, waiting for the messenger to arrive.

Exactly on time a half-grown boy rides up the road on a bicycle, locates the pasteboard box at the foot of the fence-post, slips a folded piece of paper into it and pedals away again back toward Summit.

I waited an hour and then concluded the thing was square. I slid down the tree, got the note, slipped along the fence till I struck the woods, and was back at the cave in another half an hour. I opened the note, got near the lantern and read it to Bill. It was written with a pen in a crabbed hand, and the main and substance of it was this:

Two Desperate Men:

Gentlemen: I received your letter today by post, in regard to the ransom you ask for the return of my son. I think you are a little high in your demands, and I hereby make you a counter-proposition, which I am inclined to believe you will accept. You bring Johnny home and pay me $250 in cash, and I agree to take him off your hands. You had better come at night, for the neighbors believe he is lost, and I couldn't be responsible for what they would do to anybody they saw bringing him back. Very respectfully,

EBENEZER DORSET.

"Great pirates of Penzance!" says I; "of all the impudent"—

But I glanced at Bill and hesitated. He had the most appealing look in his eyes I ever saw on the face of a dumb or a talking brute.

"Sam," says he, "what's $250, after all? We've got the money. One more night of this kid will send me to a bed in Bedlam. Besides being a thorough gentleman, I think Mr. Dorset is a spendthrift for making us such a liberal offer. You ain't going to let the chance go, are you?"

"Tell you the truth, Bill," says I, "this little he ewe lamb has somewhat got on my nerves, too. We'll take him home, pay the ransom and make our get-away."

We took him home that night. We got him to go by telling him that his father had bought a silver-mounted rifle and a pair of moccasins for him, and we were going to hunt bears the next day.

It was just 12 o'clock when we knocked at Ebenezer's front door. Just at the moment when I should have been abstracting the $1500 from the box under the tree, according to the original proposition, Bill was counting out $250 into Dorset's hand.

When the kid found out we were going to leave him at home he started up a howl like a calliope and fastened himself as tight as a leech to Bill's leg. His father peeled him away gradually, like a porous plaster.

"How long can you hold him?" asks Bill."

"I'm not as strong as I used to be," says old Dorset, "but I think I can promise you 10 minutes."

"Enough," says Bill. "In 10 minutes I shall cross the Central, Southern and Middle Western States and be legging it trippingly for the Canadian border."

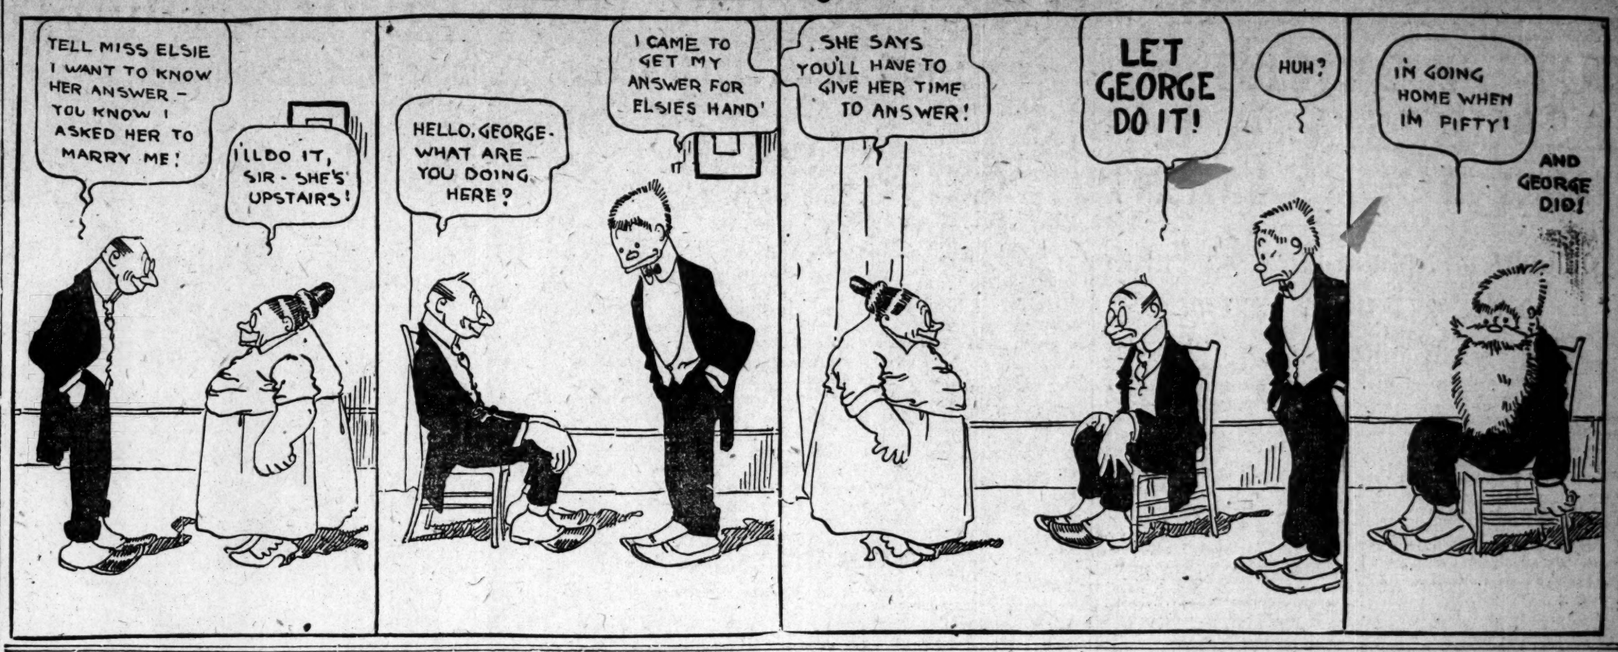

And as dark as it was and as fat as Bill was and as good a runner as I am, he was a good mile and a half out of Summit before I could catch up with him.

LET GEORGE DO IT

By George McManus

Original Fashions.

A New Department Conducted for the Post-Dispatch

By Mildred Lodewick.

I. White Marquisette.

WHITE marquisette dress, made with waist and sleeves in one, and a full gathered skirt with three deep tucks hemstitched in pale blue. A wide hemstitched tuck runs through the blouse of the waist and matches with the one through the sleeves. A flat collar hemstitched on the edge in tuck effect is laid about the neck, showing in the front a band of hand embroidery in pale blue outlined in black. There is an undercuff on the sleeve of this embroidery also. A soft black sash tied on the side front with long cords gives a striking effect.

II. In Pink and White.

DRESS of pink and white striped linen combined with plain pink linen. It is made with two wide tucks turned inward on the waist, continuing down the skirt in plaits at the bottom. The panel between the tucks is made crosswise of the material, as is also the kimono sleeves. The yoke, of pink linen, embroidered around the Dutch neck in white, laps over in the front, with a white pearl button at the front. There are two straps, one on either side of the front panel, which are also headed at the top with a pearl button just below the knees. The belt is of the plain pink linen, below which in the front is shown a circular piece embroidered in which to match the design at the neck. The dress is simple but effective in its lines.

III. A Pretty Costume.

DRESS of white marquisette, having a deep yoke around the hips, and deep shoulder revers which are embroidered in shaded old rose colors. The skirt below the yoke is plaited, and trimmed at the top of the hem with two rows of narrow Cluny beading. The square yoke, sleeves and belt are also trimmed with the same.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Dear Fashion Editor,

WOULD you kindly advise me how to make a golden crepe meteor, and what kind of a contrasting chiffon I could put over it? I am only 18. Thanking you sincerely. MISS H.

I think straw-colored chiffon carrying out a one-color scheme with your golden satin would be both youthful and pretty. The chiffon tunic could be embroidered in darker shades. A touch of contrasting color could be given by a bunch of pastel roses in blue, pale green, yellow and pale lavender placed at the belt or in the front at the lower edge of the yoke.

Dear Fashion Editor.

I HAVE a dress which was my mother's, all wool, dark brown cloth. I want to make it up for myself. I am 39 years old, tall, 38-inch bust and 28-inch waist, so can't wear everything. The skirt of the dress is very full, and I could use most any pattern for it. The sleeves I can use as they are, but the waist is plain and braided, which I like well enough, but the back is tight-fitting, in six parts. Could I do something to make it look more up-to-date? THANKFUL.

Why couldn't you take enough material out of the skirt to make a new back to your dress? If the skirt is two and one-quarter yards around it is sufficient. Could you cut it so as to have a panel in the front, left loose if possible, and braid that to match the waist? It would look quite up-to-date then.

Dear Fashion Editor,

Dear Fashion Editor.

I HAVE just received as a present 12 yards pearl gray silk mull which I should like to make up for evening wear. Would it look well draped? If so, what color could I use under and what material and trimming? I shall appreciate it very much if you give me some suggestion. I am young and a blonde. Very truly,

(MRS.) M. G. D.

Yes, it would make up beautifully, if you draped it in tunic effect, using either a rose pink or Copenhagen blue satin underneath, having a band of it show on the bottom of the skirt and a touch of it showing in the yoke, which could be of silver net. Iridescent banding of cut steel and the color used as the under part of the dress could trim the dress, running down one hip to hold the tunic, and a band across the bust.

Dear Fashion Editor.

KINDLY advise me what kind of a dress you would prefer for me. I am a brunette and not tall. Would like something stylish and simple for spring and summer. Thanking you,

MISS R. J.

A wool crepe is a light-weight material for spring and summer which you can get in almost any color. Perhaps a tan or some shade of blue would suit you. Make it on long lines with perhaps a panel in the front and back, which could be trimmed with bands of satin to match. Have a long V yoke reaching to the belt of some heavy, cream lace, and lay a strap of satin across it half way. Small reveres of the satin starting above the bust-line could trim the shoulders—or you could hand-embroider a design on the goods in self-color. Belt and cuffs of satin with undersleeves of the lace will make a pretty garment.

Mr. Jarr

Heroically Rescues Ladyfinger From Addiction to Tea and Lemonade, et als

Written for the Post-Dispatch

By Roy L. McCardell.

"NO, thank you, I never drink. It makes me nervous," said Mr. Ladyfinger.

This remark was in response to an invitation to have a glass of wine when he had come into Gus' cafe to inform Mr. Jarr that the latter's birthday party was ready and waiting.

"Then take a little as a hair tonic," said Mr. Jarr, affably.

And he gave Mr. Ladyfinger a shampoo in expert barber fashion.

"And shine up your shoes with it!" suggested Mr. Rangle, pouring some into Mr. Ladyfinger's dainty pumps.

"For the complexion there is nothing so debilitating," remarked Gus, smacking Mr Ladyfinger heartily on the back and rubbing champagne on his countenance with the bar towel.

Next to drinking more champagne than is good of them, nothing pleases people who can't afford it more than wasting it.

The more the unfortunate elocutionist and piano player writhed in their hands and slapped at his jocund tormentors, the more they roared with delight. Mr. Ladyfinger had been wearing an artificial flower in his buttonhole and the prodigally dispensed champagne struck this and marked his drenched and crumpled shirt bosom with crimson smears. The merry roisterers took the flower and painted his face artistically and then Gus wanted to know what they should do with him.

"Do with him?" asked Mr. Jarr. "Why, take him with us to my birthday party, of course."

Whereupon they seized Mr. Ladyfinger, bore him down the street and up the stairs to the Jarr apartment and through the open door in among the assembled guests.

"He's hurt! He's bleeding!" cried Mrs. Jarr. "What has happened?"

"We saved his life!" replied Mr. Jarr. "He tried to throw himself under a trolley car!"

All thought of Mr. Jarr's transgressions, of Mr. Rangle's not hastening to the party were forgotten. All surprise at the influx of Slavinski, Gus, Muller and other uninvited guests were superseded by the news of the near-tragedy.

"But he smells of—or" — (here Mrs. Jarr sniffed).

"Champagne," said Mrs. Stryver, with an air that betokened that she knew champagne by smell, sight and sound.

"He's drenched in it!" cried Mrs. Rangle.

"Isn't it terrible!" cried Miss Mudridge.

"You see, it was like this," said Mr. Jarr, coming to the rescue because he was in his own house and felt more at home in his prevarications. "We saw him rush down the street. I was in the drug store getting a headache powder. No, it was Rangle in the drug store getting a headache powder. I was in the fruit store waiting for the man to come up from the cold storage warehouse, where he had gone to get me some lemons, when I saw Mr. Ladyfinger rush in front of the car and throw himself down with a horrible shriek. In an instant I had grabbed him, while Rangle and these gentlemen here held back the car. Then we saw the man had fainted. Gus came running out of his place, and knowing that he was our guest, and expense being no consideration in consequence, dashed champagne all over him and revived him."

The dazed Mr. Ladyfinger had been so manhandled that he was in no condition to deny anything. In fact, he rather believed it; he began to believe he was a hero by reflection.

"But what made him endeavor to commit this rash act?" asked Miss Hickett.

"Delirium Teamens," said Mr. Jarr, thinking quickly. "He has become addicted to drinking tea. Day after day he goes to musicales and receptions, night after night he is at refined parties. He guzzles tea without stint by day and ice water, lemonade and thin claret punch by night"—

Just then a loud whistle was heard. All male persons flinched. They thought it was the police.

"Please, mum," said Gertrude, the maid, coming in, "a man has whistled up the dumbwaiter tube that a case of champagne is coming up with the compliments of Mr. Gus."

"Thank gwacious!" exclaimed the reviving Mr. Ladyfinger. "Then I won't have to dwink lemonade again tonight!"

And, even Mrs. Stryver was heard to say, as she was helped into her auto at 4 in the morning, that the party was "a puffic—a vay puffick—shuckshesh!"

A Block Puzzle.

I HAVE a quantity of blocks. Each one has a surface of 4 2-7 inches by 6 2-13 inches. I want to put these blocks together so as to make a perfect oblong, the longer side of which shall be twice the length of the shorter side. The measurements of this oblong must be an exact number of inches—that is, no fraction of an inch in the length of any side. What is the smallest oblong I can make?

Love and Courtesy

Written for the Post-Dispatch

By Betty Vincent.

DEAR girls, if a young man shows you quite plainly by his manner that he is tired of you, do not try to hold his attention. Let him go.

Many girls write me letters something like the one I am about to quote to you, and I am always amazed at their foolishness. This, for example, this:

"A young man has been calling on me at intervals during the past year. He seemed to like me and I fell in love with him. But now he has grown interested in another girl and does not pay so much attention to me as before, breaking my heart and I would like to know how to win him back."

Now, my dear girls, if a man has become tired of your friendship there is absolutely no way to "win him back." If your character and mannerisms do not attract him sufficiently in the first place to hold him, they certainly will not be strong enough to draw him to your side once more.

There is just one way, my dears, to treat the man who forgets you—forget him.

Promised to Wed.

C. V. P. Writes: "I am a German and have been in this country about a year. While I was home I asked a girl to marry me, and she said she would, after I had come to America and earned sufficient money for us to live upon. Now, I have not as yet earned the money, and yet the girl keeps writing me and reminding me of my promise. What shall I do?"

Write the young lady and tell her the truth plainly about your financial condition. She cannot sensibly expect you to win a fortune in a few short weeks.

Likes Dances.

K. F. C. WRITES: "I am engaged to a young girl who likes to attend dances. I have asked her not to, but she insists. Do you think it proper for her to go or not?"

There is no harm in going to a dance, and all young people like a little gayety in their lives. The best thing you can do is to go to the dances with your fiancee and be more devoted to her and agreeable than any other man there.

A Photograph.

B. V. WRITES: "Several months ago I gave a young man my photograph. After awhile I regretted that I had done so and asked him to return it. This he refused to do. When I met him on the street he told me he could not find it, which I feel sure is an untruth. What shall I do?"

There is nothing you can do but let this teach you a lesson not to give your photographs to young men in the future.

Loves Him.

M. H. WRITES: "I am in love with a young man who comes up to our house about once a week to visit my brother. He does not know I love him and I wish to let him know. How can I best do this?"

I am very much shocked to think that any girl would ask me how she may let a man (who has apparently shown no preference for her company) know that she loves him. My dear, foolish girl, let the young man do the courting.

CUT PRIZE LIST ASSURES A. B. C. 1912 TOURNAMENT

Promoters of Annual Event in Future to Get 33 1-3 Per Cent of Entrance Fees.

That the annual tenpin tournament of the American Bowling Congress will continue for awhile, at least, was assured when the delegates to the convention adopted an amendment reducing the prize list from 80 per cent of the entry money to 66 2-3 per cent Friday. While the bowlers who hereafter roll the high scores in the annual tenpin classic will suffer in the matter of reduced money prizes, it seems that the reduction was the only plan possible to perpetuate the event.

The tournament has grown to such proportions that it is a big task for even an incorporated body in a big city to handle. While the present event promises to prove a success without requiring the members of the St. Louis Tenpin Tournament Company to "dig" down in their pockets to meet any deficit, it develops that at one time the local promoters were on the point of passing up the tournament.

When the rental of the Coliseum was boosted from $8000 to $10,000 and when the tournament company learned that they were not to receive the support promised, when they sought the event in Detroit a year ago, they were about ready to sacrifice what money they had already sunk in the proposition and let the big meet go to some other city or be passed up altogether.

With the new arrangement in effect, however, any city hereafter will be assured of financial success.

The difference will be spent in promoting the tournament, and if there is a balance it will be turned over to the city that stages the event.

While Milwaukee business men had asked for the tournament next year, the bowlers hadn't decided to undertake the promotion of the meet. They were granted 60 days in which to canvass the situation in the city and if at the end of that time they felt that they would receive the necessary support, they would have officially asked for the event.

But immediately following the adoption of the amendment, cutting the prise list but making the fund for promoting the tournament bulkier, Secretary Langtry arose and said that Milwaukee was willing to undertake the task of holding the 1912 meet and congress.

The re-election of President Bryson and Secretary Langtry met with the approval of every bowler in the country. Langtry, as has been the case for three or four years, has been trying to resign, but he was ushered through with the remainder of the ticket.

In fact, if he should some day really make up his mind to quit and go rough with his determination, the tenpin men would be at a loss to select his successor.

At Friday's meeting of the delegates the following resolution was adopted:

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 27, 1911.

Whereas, The American Bowling Congress, "an international organization," assembled in the City of St. Louis, appreciates the courteous and generous hospitality extended to it and its members by citizens, the St. Louis Bowling Tournament Company, its committee and the president, as well as the press, all of whom have helped to make this the greatest bowling tournament ever held in the history of the great American game of tenpins, and

Whereas, President Edmund Koeln and Secretary C. A. Vogel of the St. Louis Tournament Company and their associates have looked after the comfort and convenience of the visiting bowlers, the press has been full and accurate in its reports of all the details of this convention and tournament, and to the citizens of St. Louis, who have so generously looked after our welcome and entertainment; therefore be it

Resolved, That we extend our heartfelt thanks to those individuals, committees and other agencies, and especially to Mr. Edmund Koeln, president of the local tournament company for the capable and efficient manner in which the details of this magnificent tournament have been handled by the local company.

ON AND OFF THE DIAMOND

August Herrmann, chairman of the National Commission, arises to take one more punch at the universally abused Charles W. Murphy. The owner of the Cubs has been pained pretty hard by the scribes of his own town the past few days. One writer went so far as to illustrate with instances his idea that Murphy was a born disturber and a menace to organized baseball. Under his own name Murphy has substantiated the statements published in this Chicago paper and declares the article fact from start to finish.

Clark Griffith of the Reds says that Hobiltzelle is one of the last men on the Cincinnati club he would think of trading. Griff is of the opinion that his first sacker is easily the class of the League, despite his weakness of missing sharp bounders hit right at him.

Frank Chance is so anxious to look over the colt Cubs that he has decided to start for the South several days earlier than at first planned.

Joe Kelley is the most popular manager that ever worked in Toronto. McGraw's old pal certainly has the Canucks raving over next season's chances, and everybody in Toronto firmly believes that if any club beats out the champion Bronchos it will be the Maple Leaf organization. Kelley has spent more than $16,000 for new men.

Wee Willie Keeler, who is billed to play in Toronto this year, will visit Hot Springs, Ark., as has been his custom for the past number of years. Keeler will go early to the health resort.

"Runt" Walsh, the utility infielder and outfielder of the Phillies, has got into the line of Quaker eligibles. Walsh was one of the handy men on Red Doolin's squad last season and looks like a comer.

Washington scribes have set up a wail because Jimmy McAleer, the manager, makes his winter headquarters at Youngstown, O., instead of Washington. The writers of the Capital City claim the news is all old before it reaches their town.

Barney Schreiber, the star pitcher of the Denver team last summer, has signed his Cincinnati contract. Denver could have got a bunch of money for this good performer last summer, but because of a close race, Jack Hendricks refused all kinds of offers for him.

Eddie Grant, whom Herrmann secured in the big Cincinnati-Philadelphia trade, threatens seriously to become a real holdout. Grant says that unless the figures of his contract are increased by something like a thousand dollars he will not be seen "pastiming" this year.

Orvie Overall, the big Cub pitcher, will assist Jimmy Schockard to coach the University of California's baseball team.

First Baseman Tennant of San Francisco had the honor of making more hits last season than any other player in the country. Tennant, of course, enjoyed a much longer schedule than that played by other leagues. Tennant was a member of the White Sox in 1908, but was left on the Coast.

Joe Sugden, an old National League catcher, has been re-elected president and chosen manager of the Newcastle club of the Ohio and Pennsylvania League.

Manager Fred Tenney of the Rustlers has asked Cincinnati to submit trade propositions for several players upon whom Griffith refused to waive. Among the number is Fred Beck.

The Board of Directors of the National League club in Boston seem weakening toward Tenney in the hang-fire Shafer-Shean deal. It has been decided that in future Tenney will have absolute control in directing the club's affairs. This policy, however, does not in any way clear Fred of the ridicule in which he has been placed by having blocked a trade which he had been instructed to make.

Frank Chance has sent letters to all his Cub pitching recruits instructing them to begin immediately to loosen up the muscles of their pitching arms. Chance believes that if the youngsters work the soreness from their wings before going South, he will be much better able to separate the chaff from the wheat.

The press of American Association cities is calling loudly for expansion into Chicago and into a third major league. Says the Kansas City Journal, one of the American Association's most influential organs: "No power in organized baseball can keep the American Association from becoming a third major league, when the organization decides to expand and give its patrons the class of ball they have been demanding."

Chicago papers fell for an alleged interview with John McGraw in which he made remarks like this: "What chance has Chicago to beat us out? None; absolutely none. That combination has broken up. Simply outlived their usefulness. Let's look over the Pirates. They are sure to play an inferior brand of ball." Anybody who knows McGraw knows that he made no such statements. These misrepresentations have been made so often that McGraw never makes predictions for publication. He may think those things about the Cubs and Pirates, but he keeps his opinions to himself.

Horace Fogel, president of the Philadelphia Nationals, is offering a prize for the most novel suggestion for a special feature to celebrate the opening game at home. Horace is welcome to our opinion for nothing. Why not have the Phillies win the opening game? That would be a novelty to the fans.

Mike Donlin has awakened Fred Tenney from the dream in which the former captain of the Giants paraded across the vision as an outfielder in a Boston uniform. Mike says that under no circumstances will he play in Boston. He seems to regard the offer as a sort of an insult to his past greatness.

CHAMPION GOTCH NOT LINKED WITH MAT INSURGENTS

Great Wrestler Is Still in Good Standing With the Empire Club.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Champion Frank Gotch, after avowed intentions to quit, will appear in a finish match here about the middle of next month. This was the information given out by the Empire Athletic Club yesterday when the officials of what has been termed the "trust" was forced to show its hand as evidence that Gotch had not joined with Hackenschmidt, Zbyszko, Roller and Ordeman in an insurgent movement to bust the alleged wrestling combine.

President Herk of the Empire Club, when asked what he knew regarding the proposed war, claimed that it was a surprise, but added that it was possible, in face of the run-in which had occurred between the club and Jack Herman, manager of Zbyszko. To show, however, that so far as he knew Gotch was on the best of terms, Herk announced that negotiations are now being carried on for a finish match, with the champion as one of the principals. The only hitch is the apparent impossibility to find a suitable opponent for the Iowa farmer.

Right Man Not Available.

According to Herk it is almost a hopeless task to find a good man. Gotch is not ready to meet Hackenschmidt, believes that Mahmout is out of the question, as he lost to the Pole, and that Zbyzsko is not to be considered in the face of the decisive defeat he suffered at the hands of Gotch last spring.

The original intention of the club was to stage a Zbyszko-Mahmout match, but it was over this that Herman balked, finally deciding to negotiate with the leading mat stars, with the idea of breaking the power of the alleged "trust." The tilt started when Herman would not consider his man being matched with the Turk. On the other hand, the club would not think of naming anyone else to meet Zbyszko, and with this edict came the scent of a possible war.

The wrestling situation at present is explained best as follows: Hackenschmidt, backed by Roller and Jack Curley, working with Herman, Zbyszko and a few others, are at odds with Mahmout and his management, and also the Empire Club; Mahmout and his backers are on the fence so far as the club is concerned. This leaves three factions. Zbyszko or Hackenschmidt will not consider meeting the Turk, Gotch is not ready to meet Hackenschmidt, and all of them are reported on the "outs" with the local clubs, so the game is in a precarious condition.

Tips and Cues

Gus Goessling beat Schumacher, 99 to 67, in the 75-inning tournament now in progress at Peterson's hall. Brown meets Biederman Saturday.

* * *

Dirhold won from Bright, 30 to 22, in the class C three-cushion tourney at Koney & Byrne's billiard parlors Friday.

* * *

In the State pool championship tournament at the Royal, Keith beat Skiff, 100 to 50, Friday night. Layton and Lang are scheduled Sunday.

* * *

Will defeated Lamm, 50 to 14, in the Rex straight pool tournament game Friday night. It's Baron against Beck Saturday. Wright and Neuscholtz are scheduled to compete in the Rex three-cushion series Saturday night.

WRAY'S COLUMN

VERY properly the American Bowling Congress has seen fit to curtail its prize list, and in future the organization will pay to city tournament associations handling annual meets 33⅓ per cent of the entrance money received.

This will enable those promoting the event to at least break even, instead of going into their pockets to make up deficits—an almost annual occurrence in the past.

Under the old system too many prizes were paid out. A team could finish seventeenth and get a $100 cash prize, while one running eighty-second could save entrance money. It is a trifle difficult to see where a five that finishes so far from the front is entitled to either fame or fortune.

The cash offerings can well be reduced, without working hardship to anyone; and the move made Friday at the session of the defegates here will undoubtedly prove vastly popular—with promoters of the annual event.

* * *

It is rumored that R. L. Hedges is going to have a try himself, at that season pass which he has offered the man who can guess the opening batting order of the Browns this year.

* * *

Set Aside Ha Ha Tonka.

NOW that the Missouri Game and Fish League is born, the only thing needed to perpetuate its existence is a little nourishment. The organization formed here Friday under this title is not the first with the same purposes in view that has originated here. But inanition killed the old Sportsmen's league before it accomplished much.

If the present organization can have the beautiful Ha Ha Tonka region set aside as a State park, it will certainly have accomplished a worthy purpose.

This Camden County tract is probably as beautiful a scenic gem as can be found in the country. An attempt was contemplated some years ago to have the preserve set aside as a National Park, but it fell through.

* * *

Not for Willie!

THE story that had a sort of larval circulation of half a day to the effect that Willie Hoppe would quit playing billiards was about as reasonable as to expect a starving hobo to abandon eating, with a banquet in front of him.

Hoppe has spent the greater part of his young life to this game. He has been studying, practicing, perfecting his play ever since the time when he had to stand on a box in order to reach some of the shots his juvenile arms could not otherwise make. Billiards furnishes him his living and from it he probably nets $15,000 annually.

If William had really made the retirement statement credited to him some of his friends would surely have led him to an alienist.

* * *

Charley Nichols, formerly manager of the Cardinals, and now in the city attending the bowling convention, dispenses a few nice words about Hallinan, the Coast infielder, who is coming to the Browns, this spring. But all the nice statements in the world can't wipe out that wonderful want of a batting record which characterized his play last year. It's not customary to figure that a .305 hitter in a minor league is going to set the world afire in the majors.

* * *

One Plan Overlooked.

One plan that was suggested as a means of relieving the tournamen: problem of the American Bowling Congress was to charge the bowlers a small sum for their games. Nearly all of the 2500 individuals competing here bowl nine games. A charge of ten or fifteen cents per game would have added $2000 or $3000 to the treasury—about the sum needed to tide over the situation.

* * *

Successor to Nelson.

THIS "Knockout" Brown may not be a champion, but he seems to be able to press Battling Nelson and Joe Grim hard in the race for the "durability" title.

Tom Jones, manager of Ad Wolgast, the lightweight champion, was a spectator at the bout between Knockout Brown and Bert Keyes. After the contest a reporter asked Jones what he thought of Brown, and he said:

"Brown is a strong, tough customer, game as they make them and can certainly hand out punishment and also take it. Some of the blows Keyes landed on Brown's jaw during the fight were enough to knock out many a man. He surely can take a blow on the jaw without being even feased."

HOGAN'S FOULS COST HIM FIGHT WITH FRANK BURNS

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 28.—Frankie Burns of Oakland won from "One Round" Jack Hogan on a foul in the twelfth round at Dreamland Rink last night. Warned time and again in the preceding rounds against his butting tactics and warned twice more in that twelfth round, he was finally disqualified by Referee Jack Welch for a third and even more vicious violation of the rules.

Hardly had Welch taken Hogan by the arm and warned him the second time in that round when the San Francisco lightweight threw himself head first at Burns. There was nothing else for the referee to do but seperate the fighters and disqualify Hogan.

DETROIT LED LEAGUE IN MAKING SACRIFICE FLIES

The Detroit club, thanks to Sam Crawford, led the American League last season in the manufacture of sacrifice flies. The Tigers sent 45 men home from third base last season with flies to the outfield, or one more than the Naps and Athletics, who all but carried off the honors in that department of the game. New York came next with 41, while Washington proved the weakest in that respect, having only 23 sacrifice flies.

Sam Crawford led the League with long sacrifice drives, having 17 chalked up on the score cards. His nearest rival was Jake Stahl with nine. Stovall and Danny Murphy being tied for third honors with eight apiece. Easterly smashed out seven, while Lajoie turned the trick only five times.

SPORTSMEN PLAN TO HAVE STATE PRESERVE SET ASIDE

A State game preserve was one of the topics discussed Friday night at the first meeting of the Missouri State Game and Fish League, at 2127 Franklin avenue, attended by 300 sportsmen. It was suggested that the bill introduced in the Senate contemplating the purchase of the Ha Ha Tonka preserve be supported by everyone interested in the preservation of game and fish.

The new organization will also use its efforts to see that adequate legislation protecting game and fish of the State is passed. The following gentlemen were named officers: Sam Stanard, president; T. M. Sayman, vice-president; H. C. Griesedieck, treasurer; H. F. Mardorf, secretary.

The next meeting of the organization will be held at 2127 Franklin avenue next Thursday evening.

FOUL FIGHTING MARS WORK OF DIGGER STANLEY

British Champion Does Everything but Kick, Bite and Gouge Yankee Rival.

By ROBERT EDGREN,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Digger Stanley, imported directly from England especially for the occasion, gave us a great exhibition of the English style of boxing at the National Sporting Club last night. Hereafter we will relegate traditions about English fair fighting to the waste basket. If there was a foul trick that Stanley failed to use on Frankie Burns during the 10 rounds it must have been one that he happened to forget in the excitement of the fight. He used all that we have ever seen here—and a few new ones.

It was a rattling fight from start to finish. Stanley started well, seeming to have all the class. He easily outboxed Burns, and there was no question about his superiority as a puncher. But after a little while the Jersey lad began sending hard right handers into Digger's stomach. Digger has one of those regulation English stomachs, apparently. Frankie's blows slowed him up and annoyed him to such an extent that he began fighting in a free-for-all style, elbowing, butting, wrestling, back-heeling and holding and hitting at the same time.

According to my theory there are certain rules governing boxing contests even though they are disregarded in some New York clubs. According to the rules Stanley should have been disqualified for fouling. He had the best of the first half of the fight, and was outfought only in the last four rounds, but the foul work he indulged in cost him a decision he might have won if he had fought cleanly. He lost.

Kessler Wins and Loses.

Kessler made a good record Friday in the Scribes' series at Peterson's parlors, annexing two games and losing one.

No games will be played Saturday. The results:

Webster (65) won from Kessler (70); score 68 to 61.
Retnog (125) won from Doyle (35); score 125 to 31.
Johnson (30) won from Perrin (40); score 30 to 32.
Kennamore (30) won from Eks (30); score 30 to 29.
Lloyd (20) won from Duffy (20); score 20 to 19.
McCarthy (90) won from Webster (65); score 90 to 42.
Kessler (70) won from McBride (25); score 70 to 30.
Kessler (70) won from Doyle (35); score 70 to 31.
Doyle won on a forfeit from Collins.

CLEVELAND MEN LEADING, NOW, IN TWO-MAN EVENT

Magnuson and Erickson Shoot 1229 Total in A. B. C. Tourney, Saturday.

COLISEUM, St. Louis, Jan. 28.—M. Erickson and E. Magnuson of Chicago, went into first place in the doubles, in the A. B. C. Tourney Bowling today, by rolling 1229. Both men rolled 215 in the third game.

The American Bowling Congress opened its eighth day at 9 o'clock with 16 Indianapolis teams on the alleys. No records were broken by them, the highest score being 1137, by R. Chandler and J. Goodwin.

The day's program was well filled with Indianapolis entries, Cleveland also being well represented. South Bend, Ind., Milwaukee and Chicago also figured well in the doubles and singles.

There should be some changes in the five-men scores tonight, some of the best teams from Chicago and Cincinnati being scheduled.

DONLIN DENIES RUMOR HE WILL RETURN TO DIAMOND

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Mike Donlin is through with baseball for good and all. His declaration to that effect, which appears today, was drawn forth by Fred Tenney's recent attempts to bring the former New York player back to the diamond as a member of the Boston Nationals.

RACQUET STARS URGE CLUBS TO PASS UP NEWPORT

Ward, Hackett, Alexander and Other Tennis Lights Want Tourney Elsewhere.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Holcombe Ward, national lawn tennis singles champion of 1904 and six times holder of the doubles title; Harold H. Hackett, the present national doubles champion, with Frederick B. Alexander; Karl H. Behr, internationalist; Lyle E. Mahan, and Marshall McLean, former president of the West Side Lawn Tennis Club, attached their signatures to a letter issued yesterday afternoon in the campaign against further holding of the championship at Newport.

A copy or the letter was sent to every club in the United States, and also to every player of prominence or official who has ever in any way come before the players as a worker for the good of the game. The text of the letter embodied the specific points which have already been brought forward against Newport, especially those advanced by Karl Behr, Lyle Mahan and Richard H. Palmer. Not only does it contain a most severe arraignment of Newport as an unsuitable place for holding the tournament, but it also places the proof of wishing lawn tennis properly conducted and governed up to the members of the Executive Committee, wherein the power has been vested up to this time.

Meeting on Feb. 4 Planned.

The strongest point of the letter is a plea that the club or player receiving it lend influence to the cause so that the sport may be placed upon a National and broad basis. The power of the voting proxy is earnestly solicited, and because of the prominence of the group signing the document it is expected that there will be an adequate response.

As to the power of the proxy, it was pointed out yesterday by Calhoun Cragin of the West Side Club that unfortunately the voting power of the National Association was so poorly arranged that clubs practically having no members and no playing grounds cast a ballot equivalent to that of the West Side Club, the New York Athletic Club or the Crescent Athletic Club with their hundreds of members. Obviously such was not proper, and that it was clubs of this sort that, having nothing to gain or lose, perfunctorily handed their proxies over to officers of the National Association, where they were used in favor of Newport. Under such a system the real wishes of hundreds of lawn tennis players were really nullified by votes cast by nonplaying, nontournament holding members. An effort will be made at the meeting in New York City on Feb. 4 to systematize the vote upon a per capita basis.

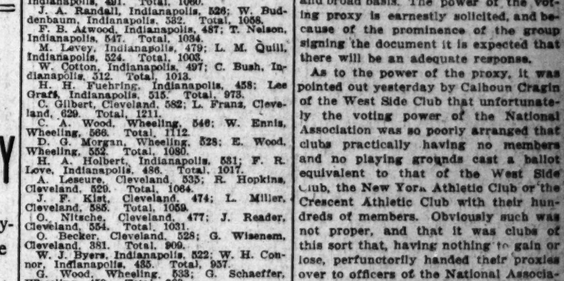

OLIVER KIRK WILL BOX IN S. B. A. C. FEATURE

Oliver Kirk will show in the feature boxing contest scheduled Saturday at the South Broadway Athletic Club. His opponent is Harry Miller, a comparative newcomer at the game, but considered a promising scrapper.

The rest of the program planned for Saturday night follows:

Joe Genall (Knights of Columbus Club) vs. William Haller (S. B. A. C.).
Jack Pesolt (S. B. A. C.) vs. F. Tobin (B. M. G.).
Fred Gilmaster (S. B. A. C.) vs. Jim Stack, unattached.
Jim Murphy (S. B. A. C.) vs. Eddie Meyers, unattached.
Abe Attell (S. B. A. C.) vs. Joe Weber (S. B. A. C.).

BACHELOR'S ASHES WILL BE DROPPED FROM EADS BRIDGE

Provision of Will, Made After the Sale of His Large Farm, to Be Carried Out.

The body of Joel Braumiller will be cremated in St. Louis Monday and his ashes will be dropped from the middle of the Eads Bridge down upon the surface of the Mississippi River.

Charles R. Lupton, undertaker, of 4449 Olive street, with an urn containing the ashes of Braumiller, will lean over the south parapet of the bridge and, tipping the urn gradually, will let the ashes fall to the river. S. H. Kemp, cashier of the Maryville (Mo.) National Bank, who was a friend of Braumiller's, will stand beside the undertaker to see that the ceremony is carried out according to the will of Braumiller, which was as follows:

"I direct that after my death my body be shipped by express to St. Louis, Mo., and there cremated and my ashes strewn to the winds from the south side of the Eads Bridge over the river."

Braumiller was an eccentric old bachelor, who lived alone in a large house upon his farm, 8 miles north of Maryville, Mo. A week ago he sold his farm for $100 an acre and made a will leaving his estate to brothers and sisters and descendants of deceased brothers. Then he became sick of pneumonia and died.

Braumiller's money was deposited in the Maryville bank and its cashier, S. H. Kemp, was one of the executors of the estate named in the will. He will leave Maryville with the body Saturday night. It will reach St. Louis over the Wabash Sunday at 7:50 a. m. and will be taken to Lupton's undertaking place.

BANDIT IS SHOT ESCAPING FROM TRAIN WITH HIS LOOT

Rio Grande Detective Wounds and Captures Robber on Colorado & Southern.

PUEBLO, Colo., Jan. 28.—Al Bane of Athol, Kan., was wounded and taken a prisoner here after he had taken $117 and some jewelry from the passengers of Colorado & Southern passenger train No. 20 at Bessemer, a suburb. Special Agent McCafferty of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad, who was in a forward coach of the train, captured Bane after a pistol duel.

Bane, who first gave his name as Al Bebtley, is about 25 years of age. He boarded the train at Union Station and stopped it at Bessemer with the air cord. Then he drew a revolver and commanded the passengers in the rear coach to hold up their hands and "dig up." He was leaving the coach when McCafferty responded to the alarm. Bane was formerly an engineer on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad.

Parent Crazed by Losses Tries to Take Money He Had Failed to Win.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 28.—Bankrupted by his losses in gambling, which his wife and young son had vainly begged the police to stop, Gustave Postler held up the Saratoga Social Club, and was shot dead in the revolver duel which followed with Ed Kripp, proprietor of the resort. Postler's 14-year-old son witnessed his father's death.

Kripp is in jail, charged with murder. He told the detectives that the last shot was fired by Postler into his own breast when he found himself trapped and sorely wounded. The result of the autopsy, held this evening, tends to confirm the story.

WOMEN DO THE WORK AND MEN TALK POLITICS—IN SERVIA

American Wife of Charge d'Affaires Comes to Study Domestic Science.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Mme. Slavko Grouitch, who was formerly Miss Mabel Gordon Dunlap of Virginia, and is now the wife of the Servian charge d'affaires in London, is in New York to study the schools of domestic science for women here. She is interested in the work of uplifting the Servian women and plans to establish a school for them in Belgrade.

"The women of Servia do all the agricultural work," she says in an appeal to American women for help. "The men? Oh, they talk politics."

THE POST-DISPATCH DAILY RECORD OF MARKETS AND FINANCE

STOCK MARKET QUIET; PRICES ARE IRREGULAR

Market News Unimportant; Idle Car Surplus Shows an Increase.

BANK RETURN IS GOOD

Reserves Increase; Excess of Deposits Over Loans Rises to $32,500,000.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

Today's stock market returned to its usual week-end apathy. Changes in prices were fractional and, as a rule, of no importance. One or two stocks—Atchison and Northern Pacific especially—were put up rather briskly, perhaps because they had not been relatively active during the week. London money rates were easier but consols also sold off.

As there was reason to expect, in view of the week's financing of subscriptions to New York City's $60,000,000 bonds, the loan account in the weekly bank statement increases very heavily. In the actual week-end showing, the expansion is $45,450,000, which is perhaps the largest increase of outstanding credits on record for any single week in the history of New York banking. Fortunately, the anticipated large increase in cash reserves is also realized; the $12,500,000 addition to that fund offsets for the most part the enormous increase in deposit liabilities.

The surplus reserve, nevertheless, decreases $1,924,000. It is still on the actual showing $4,500,000 ahead of the corresponding week in 1910 and $16,600,000 above 1909. Excess of deposits over loans rises to $32,500,000, as against last week's $20,000,000. The deposit excess a year ago was $23,600,000.

DETAILED REPORT OF DAY'S TRADING ON WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Sales of the city's $60,000,000 bond issue and reduction of the Bank of England's discount rate from 4½ to 4 per cent were the notable events of the week in the financial market. Differing opinions were expressed as to the degree of the success of the city's bond flotation, foreign participation having been smaller than was generally expected. The reduction in the Bank of England's rate was a surprise, in view of the tighter money conditions in London.

The stock market was narrow and irregular during the greater part of the week. Lack of public interest was still the most serious obstacle to a broad and active market, operations being confined to an unusual degree to the professional speculative element. Trading in bonds was on a smaller scale and prices were well maintained.

The general trade outlook was little changed, although favorable developments here and there encouraged a growing spirit of optimism. There was a moderate expansion in the placing of steel orders, and various trade reports indicated some revival in mercantile lines. Heaviness in copper shares reflected mixed conditions in that industry. Money continued to be extremely easy.

Price movements were irregular at the opening of the stock market today, with a fairly large volume of business. A further weakness was developed in the copper shares, Amalgamated Copper declining a point in the first few minutes of trading. St. Louis Southwestern advanced 1½ and Norfolk & Western, Western Maryland and Canadian Pacific ¾ each. Union Pacific and Reading gained fractionally.

The market moved upward, although the gains for the most part were comparatively small. United States Steel rose to 79¼, a new high record for the present movement. Northern Pacific crossed 120 and Chesapeake & Ohio gained a point. Higher prices uncovered some selling orders and the market receded slightly, but soon steadied again.

The market closed active and firm. Best prices of the session were made in the second hour, with further gains in Atchison, Northern Pacific and other active issues. Amalgamated Copper made only partial recovery, but pressure on United States Steel and Reading were less marked. Union Pacific was quite the heaviest of the standard shares.

ACCUSED LAWYER IS NOTIFIED HE MUST VACATE HIS OFFICE

Dissatisfaction, Caused by Building Tenants, Responsible for Move.

Attorney Charles E. Blair, against whom a number of stenographers have made complaints, was notified Saturday by A. M. Frumberg, attorney for the Central National Bank Building, to vacate his offices as soon as possible.

Frumberg declares that by his action he is not passing on the guilt or innocence of Blair, but that the notoriety has made other tenants dissatisfied.

"We endeavor to keep our standard of tenants up to the very highest," he continued "and while our business dealings with Blair have always been pleasant, the publicity he is getting has made this action necessary." Blair said he would comply with the order.

CLERK'S $500 FINE REDUCED

Pays $353.50 for Selling Swelled Tomatoes.

The case against R. I. Wagner, clerk for the Reinhart Grocery Co., 501 South Third street, fined $500 several weeks ago for selling swelled tomatoes, was disposed of by Judge Falkenhainer Saturday morning by reducing the fine from $500 to $300 and the costs, amounting to $53.50. This amount was paid.

Attorneys Stern and Haberman, representing Wagner, offered to waive an appeal if the reduction was made.

WHEAT MARKET IRREGULAR ON SMALL OFFERS

News Favors the Sellers; Foreign Markets Are All Lower.

The wheat market was irregular and weak again Saturday on selling by both longs and shorts. An oversold condition checked the decline to some extent, especially in the near options.

Market news was nothing for the bulls to enthuse over. Reports from the growing wheat section were more favorable and statistics continue bearish. The cash demand shows no pronounced improvement, despite the long decline of 6c a bushel in the last few weeks. Foreign markets are bearish and find no difficulty in supplying their needs from other than American sources. The primary movement continues liberal, and shipments light. Stocks generally are heavy.

Wall street has been a seller of wheat in the past two days, and was a material factor in Friday's open break. The tip was, "sell wheat and buy stocks." For once the tip made good.

Foreign markets reported speculation quiet and professional. Liverpool prices opened lower, on realizing in the March option on free and larger offers from Australia and Russia and increasing receipts. European crop advices continue favorable, and reports from Argentine are to the effect that new wheat is moving freely to ports, with some disposition shown to lower prices on offerings.

Liverpool wheat futures closed ⅛@⅜d lower, corn unchanged. Antwerp wheat ⅝c lower, Berlin ¾c lower. Paris unchanged, flour ¼@1¼c lower.

Minneapolis cars of wheat today were 303 against 270 last week, 393 last year. Duluth received 56 cars: last week 55; last year 50. Winnipeg had 24 cars against 59 last year. Minneapolis wheat stocks increased 95,000 bu in 1 day.

The corn market was quiet and reactionary on selling by the pit element, on the recent decline in wheat and the relative firmness in corn. Clearing weather favors the movement and the domestic and export demand continues slack. Cables were unchanged on the call. Oats were quiet and easy.

Chicago wheat receipts today 40,000 bu against 26,000 bu last year; shipment 25,000 bu against 29,726 bu last year.

Local wheat receipts today 97,149 bu or 1444 sacks, 62 cars local, 7 through; last year 66,000 bu or 51 cars local, 4 through.

Local corn receipts today 157,800 bu or 800 sacks, 86 cars local, 44 through; last year, 167,200 bu or 137 cars local, 15 through.

Local oats receipts today 69,700 bu or 24 cars local, 17 through; last year 150,400 bu or 58 cars local, 36 through.

Total primary wheat receipts today, 703,017 against 772,075 bu last year; shipments 261,895 bu against 234,1.. bu last year.

Export clearances of wheat and flour, 204,000 bu, of corn 556,000 bu, of oats 700 bu.

Cash wheat was steady for good and choice soft winter, and in fair demand by local and outside mills.

Cash corn weak and lower, except white grades which were scarce and in demand.

Cash oats dull, but unchanged: limited demand from locals and shippers.

COTTON MARKET IS FIRM DESPITE A SMALL DEMAND

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 3@5 points on a little trade buying in the absence of prompt offerings. Cables were about as due and while reviews of the general dry goods situation read a little more favorable, sales of print cloths at Fall River for the week were estimated at small figures and curtailment both there and at New Bedford was said to be increasing. The news seemed to be about a standoff and business here was very quiet during the morning, with prices easing off a point or two toward the end of the first hours under local selling.

Cotton futures closed quiet. Closing bids: Jan., 14.65c; Feb., 14.65c; March, 14.76c; April, 14.85c; May, 14.93c; June, 14.98c; July, 14.95c; Aug., 14.63c; Oct., 13.40c; Dec., 13.26c.

Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 14.90c; middling gulf, 15.15c. Sales, 101 bales.

The market closed quiet, with prices net 1 point lower to 2 points higher.

50,000,000,000 GALLONS OF WATER LEFT IN DRY MANHATTAN

New York Supply Short and Dry Shaves and Unchased Bitters May be Imperative.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—New York is down to its last 50,000,000,000 gallons of water, and if the drought which has existed since last May continues for three months more, Father Knickerbocker will have to take a dry shave in the morning and drink his bitters neat.

If the weather were suitable a man might wade across the Croton Lake reservoir today and never wet his shirt front. A report from the Water Commissioner says the supply is the lowest in the history of the Water Department.

"There has been no rain of benefit to the city's water supply since last May," he said. "However, there is no immediate danger. There is plenty of water for present needs, but there is not a drop to waste."

WARRANTS FOR TWO DOCTORS

Charges of Incomplete Birth Reports Made by Health Officers.

Three warrants against Dr. P. G. Paugh, 5002 Delmar boulevard, and one against Dr. Nellie Feeney, 536 North Taylor avenue, were sworn to Saturday morning by Special Officers Moynihan and Haines, attached to the Board of Health on charges of making incomplete reports regarding births.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The bill incorporating the Carnegie endowment for the advancement of universal peace, providing for a national central body for the care and distribution of the $10,000,000 fund recently created by Andrew Carnegie, was ordered favorably reported by the House Committee on Judiciary yesterday.

AMERICAN FINES PUNISH PLAYERS AT GREEK FARO

Judge Tracy Initiated Into the Mysteries of Foreign Game After Raid.

The mysteries of Pasetta, a Greek gambling game bearing a slight resemblence to faro, were explained in Judge Tracy's court Saturday morning when 30 Greeks were arraigned on a charge of gambling at a coffee house at 524 Elm street. The police raid at 4 o'clock Saturday morning was on complaint of George Morris, a Greek, who told the Court he thought it was wrong for the game to be running because the victims earned their money by hard labor and had families who needed their wages.

Judge Tracy complimented Morris for causing the raid.

The three leading players, Sam Andeppos, William Kolakias and James George Opolus, were fined $10 each. Thirteen other players were fined $5 each and all appealed.

FRACTURED SKULL COULDN'T KEEP FIREMAN FROM A FIRE

Joseph Eustace Put Off Going to Hospital Until Blaze Was Out.

Joseph Eustace of 3229 Pine street, member of Salvage Co. No. 2, 1310 Merchant street, attended a fire with his skull fractured before landed at the city hospital for treatment.

Eustace is a canvas man and rides with the driver and rings the gong. As the wagon left the house early Saturday morning he was standing up and his head struck the door frame, but he insisted he was not seriously hurt and went on to the fire. When the blaze was out he went to the hospital.

TERMINAL LETS COMPTON AVENUE VIADUCT CONTRACT

The Terminal Railroad Association notified President Maxime Reber of the Board of Public Improvements Saturday morning that a contract had been let for building a viaduct at Compton avenue. This will be the largest viaduct in the city and will be 58 feet wide, extending from Manchester to Chouteau avenues.

The cost of the work will be about $350,000, and the contract has been let to the Fruin-Colnon Construction Co. The expense will be apportioned among the Terminal, Wabash, Missouri Pacific and Frisco companies.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of dear mamma, Christina Marie Reboehr, who passed away two years ago today.

Like ivy on the withered oak
When all things else decay,
Our love for you will still keep green
And never fade away.

Loving children,
HARRY, ANNA AND BESSIE.

TWO GREAT JOYS IN FRIDAY NIGHT SYMPHONY SCORES

They Come With Foote's "Serenade," and Goldmark's "Rustic Wedding."

FINE ORCHESTRAL CONCERT

Strings and Wood-Winds Divide Honors in an Evening of Tuneful Beauty.

BY RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS.

FOR downright joy to music-loving hearts the supreme moments of Friday night's program presented by the Symphony Orchestra at the Odeon were those that brought the second phase of the second movement of Foote's "Serenade in E Major for Strings," and the bridal song, serenade and garden tone-pictures of Goldmark's "Rustic Wedding" symphony.

During the first-named period the audience heard as purely tuneful a singing of sweet strings, dominated by the 'celli carrying the melody, as one's soul could wish, with young Theodore du Moulin's splendid 'cello crying out above its fellows like some greatly wistful contralto voice of infinite emotional appeal.

It was a very lovely melody in which the 'cello note was thus so compellingly sounded, and, also, it was a very perilous testing of the true artistry of Max Zach's string section.

The test was not so much that of technique, imperative though its demand for instrumental mastery, as of temperamental response to the composer's mood. The very faintest dereliction in feeling would have placed upon this interpretative moment a blemish marring its beauty beyond all remedying.

Such a dereliction is easily possible to the best of orchestras, because it is the result, not of any lack of training or of rigorous rehearsal, so much as of the coincident temper of individual players. The interpreter must needs, at the crucial instant of interpretation, be perfectly attuned to the spirit and intent of the composer, else may all the acquired skill of a lifetime go for naught in the effectiveness of the achievement.

The rapture of Friday night's meeting of this test arose from the fact that, happily, Mr. Zach's men seemed in a mood of absolute responsiveness to that of the score itself. The result was a singularly beautiful performance of one of the most delicate and trying of orchestral tasks.

The second great delight of the evening, the competent interpretation of the three movements of the Goldmark composition already mentioned, brought with it the upliftment of the oboe to perhaps its utmost possibility of charm in orchestral employment, and also enabled the clarinet to reveal its lyric voice in its very sweetest guise.

The oboe's opportunity had its beginning in the bridal song movement, the contrasting theme of which is sounded by this most poetic of instruments. But its fullest opportunity came with the serenade, when two oboes are called upon to sing a duet of truly exquisite quality, approached and intensified in its succeeding appeal by a prelude so lovely as to leave one well-nigh breathless with the ecstasy of its hearing.

In this phase of the Goldmark score, ultimately taken up by other instruments, it seemed to me that our Symphony Orchestra proved its growth in pure art so convincingly as to banish all apprehension for the future. Wherefore was it truly a comfort to all loyal souls that love the great orchestral organ of Max Zach's upbuilding.

The clarinet's best hearing came with the fourth, the andante, movement, "In the Garden," which gives to this woodland lute the singing of a particularly beautiful melody that subsequently passes to the violins and receives from their tuneful strings a culmination of utmost congeniality with the song of the clarinet. The entire movement was of exceeding charmfulness, the clarinet, the violins, the 'cellos, the horns, the higher wood-winds, all sharing in its joys, and it impressed Friday night's audience with a very keen realization of its loveliness.

Converse's orchestra fantasia, "The Mystic Trumpeter," a musical setting of one of Walt Whitman's poems, was finely presented by Mr. Zach's men and commended itself as a composition of considerable merit in insight and the voicing of museful thought. The overture to Schubert's "Rosamunde," which, though of an occasionally potent melodic appeal, was the least memorable of the evening's offerings, constituted the program's opening number and received a capable interpretation.

The entire program will be repeated at Saturday's matinee concert.

41 MISSIONS WILL BE HELD JAN. 18-APRIL 16

They Will Be Under the Auspices of the Redemptorist Fathers.

FATHER BARRETT LEAVES

St. Louis Priest Will Take Charge of St. Theresa's Parish at Lithuim, Mo.

Forty-one missions will be held by Redemptorist missionaries in the Western Province during the period extending from Jan. 8 to Easter Sunday, April 16. A mission of two weeks being conducted by the Rev. Fathers Francis Straubinger and P. Bregenzer at Richmond, Ind., will close Sunday. The mission opened last Sunday at Sacred Heart Church, Nosborne, Mo., by the Rev. Father Walter Polk, will close Feb. 5.

The missions to be held in February are:

Feb. 12 to 19, St. Mary's Church, Rosemount, Io.; Rev. Father F. Straubinger. Feb. 5-12, St. John's Church, Koerth, Tex.; the Rev. Father F. X. Lepsa. Feb. 12-19, St. John's Church, Sheboygan Falls, Wis.; the Rev. Father Bregenzer. Feb. 12-19, St. Mary's Church, Sweet Home, Tex.; the Rev. Father F. X. Lepsa. Feb. 19-26, St. Joseph's Church, Gonzales, Tex.; the Rev. Father F. X. Lepsa. Feb. 26 to March 5, Holy Trinity Church, Chicago; the Rev. Father H. Aschoff. Feb. 26 to March 5, St. Catherine's Church, Algonac, Mich.; the Rev. Father F. Straubinger. Feb. 19-26, St. Rose Church, Lima, Wis.; the Rev. Father F. X. Lepsa.

The Rev. Father T. J. Barrett, who has been assisting at the Visitation Church since the death of the Rev. Father E. J. Dempsey, left this week to take charge of St. Teresa's Parish, at Lithium, Mo.

Services for the Forty Hours' Adoration will take place at Christian Brothers' College Feb. 2, 3 and 4. Services will be held Feb. 3, 4 and 5 at St. Bridget's Church. The Brothers of Chaminade College at Clayton, which was opened last September, have announced that the Forty Hours' Adoration will be held in the college chapel within the next few weeks.

The officers elected for the coming year by the members of the Brotherhood Bible class of the Cote Brilliante Presbyterian Church are: President, E. F. Smith; vice-president, H. W. Girthofer; treasurer, H. C. Koindoelfer; chairman relief committee, H. Masten; chairman membership committee, S. A. Kepner; chairman social committee, J. A. Bailey. The class has enrolled more than 800 members during the last year. A. M. Roblee is the class teacher.

The communion of the Lord's supper will be observed at the Sunday morning services at the Maple Avenue Reformed Church. The pastor, the Rev. J. H. String, will continue his series of illustrated sermons Sunday night.

The vesper service at the Y. W. C. A. at 5 p. m. Sunday will be under the auspices of the employment department. The address will be made by the Rev. J. G. Reynolds of Madison. A social hour will follow the services, during which a 5-cent lunch will be served.

The Rev. E. A. Abbott, pastor of Union Avenue M. E. Church, will deliver an address on "The Greatness of Christianity" at a meeting of the Ministerial Alliance Monday at 10:30 a. m., at the Central Y. M. C. A. The address is a book review of various addresses delivered at the Hartford (Conn.) Theological Seminary.

Revival services will begin Sunday in a tent at Arlington and Lilian avenues, under the direction of the Rev. S. E. Ewing, superintendent of Baptist Missions. The music will be in charge of R. O. Bolt, who conducted the Gipsy Smith chorus. Singers from the various Baptist churches in the city have volunteered their services to the choir.

An address on "The Whole Man" will be delivered Sunday at 4 p. m., by the Rev. Charles S. Mills, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church, at the Central Y. M. C. A., Grand and Franklin avenues.

The last of a series of lectures by the Rev. M. H. Lichliter on the subject "The Literature of Revolt," will be delivered Sunday night at the Maple Avenue M. E. Church. His subject in the final talk will be "The Lure of the Morbid."

The revival services being conducted at the Shaw Avenue M. E. Church, Tower Grove and Shaw avenues, by Evangelist James M. Burwick, a former railroad conductor, will continue until Feb. 15.

The men's meeting at the North Side Y. M. C. A., 1909 St. Louis avenue, at 4 p. m., Sunday, will be addressed by the Rev. Williamson Dunn Vater of North Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. H. S. Kimura, a Japanese minister, will fill the pulpit of Grace Presbyterian Church Sunday morning.

REVIEWS OF NEW BOOKS

"CONTROVERSIAL ISSUES IN SCOTTISH HISTORY."

THIS large and interesting book has resulted from the efforts of a St. Louisan, Mr. William H. Gregg Sr., to trace his family line. He began that work upon his retirement from business some twenty years ago, and the ultimate result is a volume of some six hundred pages which might be termed a digest of all the works upon Scottish history that have been of any great value or importance. Mr. Gregg has done this work not only in his own library, which has by this time become extensive, but in the greater libraries of America and Europe. Himself a McGregor, and his original intention having been to confine himself to that clan, he has naturally given it more space and prominence than are accorded to anything else, but there is nevertheless a great deal of other matter in the work, and the epitomic nature of it ought to render it valuable to anyone interested in Scottish history, especially if one has neither the time nor the opportunity to read so many books on the subject as Mr. Gregg digested.

Mr. Gregg has found that, aside from the usual haziness of that period when letters were just discovering the British Isles, Scottish history is quite reliable in all the works written prior to the latter part of the eighteenth century. About that time there appeared a new school of writers whom he has reason to believe made no very serious effort to write the real history of Scotland, but evolved out of their imaginations a hypothetical history of that country which so far departs from the testimony of the older documents and writings that the history of Scotland may be said to be even in this day in grave danger of becoming hopelessly involved. He lay great stress upon this point, and reproduces more than three hundred facsimiles from old chronicles, oftentimes an entire page, in the strange letters of its time, to prove that such a movement occurred. He makes a special illustration with what the old and new writers say of that period of 250 years between the reigns of Kenneth McAlpin, A. D. 840, and Malcolm Canmore, A. D. 1093. That period embraces the 18-year reign of King Gregory, to whose time the history of the clan McGregor led the author at the beginning of his researches 20 years ago. Especially since 1837, says Mr. Gregg, there seems to have been a preconcerted movement utterly to abolish the old history of Scotland and to replace it with one which is almost wholly without documentary evidence.

The book contains 12 chapters, and is carefully indexed. Its chief appeal beyond a limited circle of antiquarians will be to families descended from the Highland clan of McGregor. These are all mentioned, together with whatever the author could find of the origin of the name. (Putnam.)

"THE PHANTOM OF THE OPERA."

"THE PHANTOM OF THE OPERA" is a gripping story of mystery and a solution of mystery, holding its readers absorbed from the first to the last chapter. It is also a daring venture in contemporaneous fiction, blending realism with the most audacious imaginings, yet maintaining its hold on credence by the shrewdest narrative skill.

Boldly taking for the scene of its amazing incidents the Paris Opera House of today, perhaps the most famous, as it is the most beautiful, temple of music in all the world, it swiftly and convincingly transforms that great structure into a veritable conjurer's house of astounding happenings that stimulate interest to the fever pitch of dramatic suspense and expectancy.

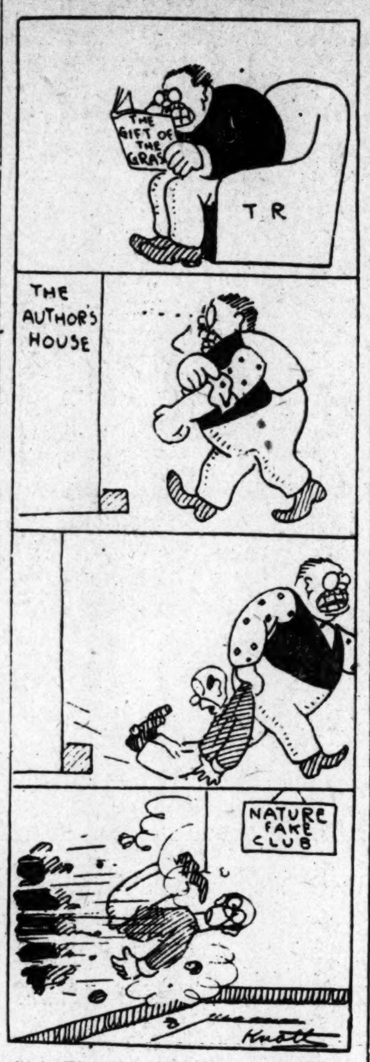

The Paris Opera House has 17 stories above ground and five subterranean cellars, the latter walled in against a great lake that has never seen the light of day. The structure is so vast and so complete that, in addition to its renowned features known to the public, it possesses 538 separate dressing rooms, and its underground arrangements in themselves constitute a labyrinth-city of impressive area. It is in this tremendous setting that the story's author, Gaston Leroux, places the sinister title-role figure of The Phantom of the Opera. He then weaves around that mysterious character a series of strange adventures that utterly baffle conjecture and cause the final explanation of their nature and origin to "smash" one's imagination with a quality of surprise amounting to dramatic shock. At every moment of the story's telling the note of horror is potently sounded.

For this malignant title-role figure of The Phantom of the Opera is a monstrous creature, with a skeleton body, a death's head, gleaming, yet seemingly empty eye-sockets, bony caverns where nose and mouth should be, and the reader is kept wondering if such a Thing can be human. Then, too, the story of which The Phantom is the compelling cause, is in itself vital with horror. It concerns the fate of a certain famous prima donna of the Paris Opera, of a splendid young French Vicomte who loves her and is loved by her, of the appalling death of his elder brother, M. le Comte de Chagny, the head of their ancient house. Over all these characters impends at every instant the menace of The Phantom, a monster animated by a consuming hatred of the human race.

Yet, cunningly, this monster is suddenly shown to us as not entirely evil, for, at one supreme moment of the story, toward its close, he stands out so swiftly in the appealing guise of one cursed by nature and made malign because robbed of all hope of human association, sympathy and love, that the consequent tug at one's heart-strings is poignant indeed, and the final tragedy overwhelming The Phantom himself becomes singularly pitiable. Just what this tragedy is, just what ultimately befalls the beautiful young diva of the Paris Opera House and her nobleman-sweetheart, and just what is the solution of the mystery enveloping The Phantom, remains, of course, for the story itself to tell. The book is handsomely published, with striking double-page illustrations in color by Andre Castaigne, the famous French artist, who made special studies of the Paris Opera House in order to insure the absolute fidelity of his pictorial work. "SON OF THE WIND."

LUCIA CHAMBERLAIN is before us again. This time it is with a book that has in it the color of low mountains in the hot sunlight, changing—now blue, now golden, again gray. Of course, there is a man in the book, too, and a woman. Also a horse. But those who know the place will stir restlessly as they read and catch themselves sniffing unconsciously for the smell of the desert which must be just over beyond the mountains.

As to the romance of the man and the woman, it is very entertainingly told. The woman is a girl when you first encounter her, but she grows wonderfully in stature before the book is finished. And yet in time the space of only a few weeks is covered.

This man is after a horse; a phantom sort of a wild horse, one is almost persuaded until near the end of the book. He is a gentlemanly sort of a broncho buster, and he tries the same tactics with the girl that he has found successful when applied to horses. Does he win her? To be sure he does!

"Son of the Wind," is worth reading, but it will have a double appeal for those who love the lands that lie between Bill Williams' Mountain and the Needles on the one hand, and Yuma and Utah on the other.

"It was solitude but it was not desolation. The air was stimulating and vital. The canon was peopled with curious forms of rock and tree—round towers, banners and figures which, when confronted, were not figures. Yet, at the first glimpse, to his fancy, they took, always, one shape. Twisted pine, sandstone, shard, the image in his mind flashed into the senseless stuff, animated it and melted. The procession of cliffs separated into high, round hills."—Bobbs-Merrill.

CHEER-LADEN SERMONS.

REV. LOUIS ALBERT BANKS, pastor of Independence Avenue M. E. Church, Kansas City, Mo., has the gift of making his sermons bright with anecdote and well-chosen verse. "The World's Childhood," is a book of such sermons, being a series written upon themes drawn from the first three chapters of Genesis. It is, as it ought to be, based upon Bible texts, but it is also meaty with Shakspeare, Browning, Ruskin, Milton, Byron at his best, Tennyson, Hawthorne, Hadley of Yale, Pascal, Kant and many other leaders of thought. It is also written in such a hopeful, non-theological, thoroughly modern style, that it can hardly fail to be acceptable to those who reasonably enough, dread the average sermon book. In keeping with its contents, the book is attractively bound. What more can the reader ask? (Funk & Wagnalls, New York.)

"HUXLEY AND EDUCATION."

PROF. HENRY FAIRFIELD OSBORN of Columbia College makes a plea for productive thought and effort in his opening address before his students, just published in a neat little book. Having had Huxley as a professor, he shows that Huxley always aimed at and urged his students to do productive work.

To Prof. Osborn, an "allround, liberally educated man," from the very earliest times to "the time when the earth shall become a cold cinder," is ever the same. He is "the man who follows his standards of truth and beauty, who employs his learning and observation, his reason, his expression, for purposes of production, that is, to add something of his own to the stock of the world's ideas."

This is the keynote to the address. Prof. Osborn advises his students not to wait with their productive efforts until they graduate. He desires to see them think as they go along, produce something from the very first. Incidentally the author has something to say about the newspapers which miss the true value of their news by giving two columns to a football game and only two sticks to an intercollegiate debate. He does not plead for seriousness so much as for "worth whileness." All in all the booklet is stimulating. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)
